PRIEST SCORES MAYOR

Mgr. O'Callaghan Declares Money Spent in South Boston With Small Return.

Monsignor Denis O'Callaghan, pastor of St. Augustine's Parish, South Boston, who was the principal speaker at to-day's Old Home Week exercises in the South Boston High School, said that South Boston deserved more at the hands of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald than the district has received.

Shaking his finger in the air, the priest said:

"I wish His Honor the Mayor were here now. I would tell him personally that South Boston is worthy of consideration.

"I would be glad to take him to my district and point out places where large sums of money have been spent by the city, but with little returns. South Boston deserves much more consideration from Mayor Fitzgerald than it has received."

Monsignor O'Callaghan refused to say anything more about the comment on the Mayor. The thousands of dollars which the speaker referred to as having been spent in his district were spent on widening Dorchester street and in general street repairs in that part of South Boston.

2 WOMEN SLAIN BY A STRANGLER

Circumstances Point to Double Crime by Same Man, Though Bodies of Victims Were Found in Widely Separated Localities.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Two young women have fallen victims to a strangler in New York within the last twenty-four hours. From the fact that the crimes were of a similar character the police think they have been committed by the same man, and are ransackin the city. One of the women w found dead in a furnished room West Twenty-second street, the other in an East Ninetieth street areaway.

To make sure of death in the East Nineteenth street case the murderer stabbed his victim in the abdomen, inflicting a wound, however, which would not have been immediately fatal.

The police are not certain whether the woman was killed in the areaway or taken there from another place to cover the murderer's tracks.

The young woman strangled to death at No. 475 West Twenty-second street is believed to have been Sophie Kohler of Buffalo and Jersey City.

After having strangled the young woman to death her slayer left the house and returned before daylight to get a photograph of her which he had left on the mantelpiece and on which was written:

"From your best love, Sophie Kohler."

For days before this the housekeeper had noticed the picture and to-day recalled the inscription. In the room was found a bottle of rosewater, which had been purchased from a Jersey City drug gist.

LIVED WITH MAN.

It was discovered to-day that a Sophie Kohler had lived with a man named Wi son at No. 349 Pacific street, Jersey Cit until a month ago. This was a few doo from the drug store in which she bought the rosewater. From there she moved month ago to a house said to be kept by Mrs. Hood at No. 147 East Twenty-seven street, Manhattan, and instructed the pos office to forward her mail there. At the time she changed her name to May Gr ham.

In Jersey City she said that she can from Tonawanda, N. Y., and had friend living at No. 28 Barry street, Buffalo. Th man named Wilson with whom she liv in Pacific avenue closely resembles th description of the man Davis or Davidso who rented the room for the girl who w strangled to death in West Twenty-seco street.

The slaying of the young woman w mitted so quietly that although there were could tell, unless it was jealousy.

The lodging house murder was com mitted so quickly that although there wer other persons in the building at the tim no one was aroused. Other occupants o

ANNA GOULD AND PROFLIGATE PRINCE TO WED

Lawyer Who Won Her Divorce From Boni Confirms Paris Rumor.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Edmond Kelly, the French-American lawyer who obtained for Anna Gould her divorce from Count Boni de Castellane, came to America to-day with Mrs. Kelly, with almost positive confirmation of the rumors that Miss. Gould will marry the prodigate Prince de Sagan.

"It will be regrettable to many of her friends if she does marry him," said Mr. Kelly. "War, Prince de Sagan can spend more money before 9 o'clock in the morning than Count Boni could spend in a week.

"If he captures Miss. Gould it will prove to be the most expensive matrimonial match ever made by an American million aires with a titled foreigner.

"Are you here to urge her brother and sister, George and Helen Gould to protest against the reported match?"

"I am not at liberty to discuss that. But Miss. Gould is no longer the foolish child she was when she married de Castellane. She is now an intelligent woman and she should know best."

It is understood in Paris that if Miss. Gould and Prince de Sagan are married she will have to pay a much higher price than she did to get Castellane. Undoubtedly there would be a prenuptial agreement calling for the writing of seven figures at least. His family holds the young Prince at a very high figure.

And, besides that there would have to be an allowance of spending money for the Prince, which would keep a half dozen establishments going. It will all be very expensive.

LIEUT. GRANT AND MISS ROOT SOON TO WED

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The engagement is announced of Lieutenant U. S. Grant, 3d, U. S. A., and Miss Edith Root, only daughter of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Elihu Root.

Lieutenant Grant is a son of Major-General Frederick Dent Grant, and grandson of the late President Grant.

The young people became acquainted while Lieutenant Grant was on duty at the White House as military aide to the President.

Miss Root is a girl of high intellectual attainments, and has never cared a great deal for society. She is a splendid horsewoman and fond of travel.

The wedding will probably take place early in the fall.

3 SLAIN IN RACE RIOT, LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 30.—It was reported in this city just before midnight last night that three Italians had been killed in a riot or race war at Florence, a suburb about eight miles distant. The sheriff, with a posse posse, has left for the scene.

RED-SHIRTED VETS DRAG HAND TUBS TO MONSTER PLAYOUT

GOVERNOR, MAYOR AND CHEERING HOST REVIEW GREAT PARADE OF FIRE FIGHTERS.

Veteran firemen from all over New England paraded to-day as part of the celebration of Old Home Week. After they had been cheered by cheering thousands, who filled the streets all along the line of march, passed salutes with the Mayor and doffed hats to the Governor, they passed onto the Common, where the grand playout is in progress this afternoon.

When Chief Marshal Samuel Abbott, Jr., loaned back over the ebbets of red shirts he was filled with much pride. Under his arrangement there had been brought together the largest collection of hand tub companies ever brought to the city. It was 9:25 when the order to march was given.

They were a natty looking crowd. At the head of the line were the drab-coated veterans of Charlestown, who acted as escort to the Chief Marshal. They walked with some bit of pride, as befits those who had been given the place of honor. Their gilded pig was much in evidence.

They won applause.

Boston's Ancient Tub.

Not all of it, however. Back of them came the Boston veterans with the little ancient old tub that did service in 1793, Boston No. 1. It is a tiny affair—this relic of the first days of organized fire fighting —with a metal body and solid wooden wheels, looking for all the world like a small boy's plaything.

The escort that surrounded that old piece of apparatus swelled with pride as they pulled it along.

Chief Marshal Abbott was surrounded by a staff composed of members of the Boston Fire Department, the Boston Protective Department and one aide from each of the organizations in the parade. His chief of staff was M. C. Cavanaugh.

The chief marshal carried a silver trumpet, in which there was placed a bouquet of bright hue.

The line of march was through Beacon street from Arlington, Charles, Boylston, Tremont, Temple place, Washington, Summer, High, Federal, Milk, Broad, State, past the old State House on the south side, Washington, School and Beacon streets to the corner of Charles street, where the line was reviewed by the chief marshal.

Guild Doffs Hat.

Mayor Fitzgerald was on the stand in front of City Hall, surrounded by members of the city government. At the State House Governor Guild came out to doff his hat and smile on the enthusiastic veterans. Old Home Week turned out in great numbers. Even at the starting point the sidewalks were lined, and as the parade passed long and reached the business streets the throngs grew in size and enthusiasm.

There were about 1,800 men in line and over forty companies of veterans. Bands of fife and drum corps accompanied every uglue.

The veterans "laid themselves out" to punish the picturesque. Revere company of Revere headed by a double of the man who rode from Charlestown to Concord and gave warning of the approach of the British. This Paul Revere got a fine reception.

Waltham showed up with the real thing in the line of a drum major. He was a much-bedecked and very dignified colored gentleman, who was not allowed to forget for a moment that he was at the head of a aggregation that was out for first money in the muster.

George Washington in Line.

The manner in which he turned his comany at corners brought him cheer after heer. He allowed his name was George Washington.

Arlington came out with Eureka No. 1, he only tub of its kind in the parade, one hat came to that town in 1861.

"Now," said Foreman C. A. Tilden, "we've taken some musters with this machine and we are out after this one. All we need to be the best because the old tub is some hard, but we've got the beef to-day all right."

Arlington had nearly one hundred men in line.

Owen Moselan's Roxbury Veterans were headed by the Mission Church Band, and the little fellows got as much applause as the veterans. The diminutive drum major, a veteran himself in his line, twirled his staff in a manner to win cheers at every point, and the military swiftness with which the entire corps executed their movements moved sightseers to enthusiasm.

There were old men in line and young men. Some had served with the old tubs they were helping to drag through the streets. Some hadn't been to very many fires before they found other kinds of jobs, but they were veterans just the same and loyal to the old machine.

In contrast to the ancient fire fighting machines, there appeared in the parade the latest designs of apparatus. It didn't matter if the newest style of aerial truck was numbered thirteen. Nobody seemed to notice. Then there was combination No. 11 from Dorchester, something new in the line of chemical engine and ladder truck combined. Engine No. 4, the most modern in the department, with its full complement of silent young men, was polished until it was as good as any looking glass.

Chiefs in Fire Auto.

Then there was the last water tower added to the force, No. 3, from Pittsburg street.

Last of all but not the least noticed were the two men who run the Boston fire force, Commissioner Benjamin W. Wells and Chief John A. Mullen in the big red auto that carries the chief to all serious fires with Lieutenant Joseph Webber, son of the late chief, acting as chauffeur.

Immediately after the chief marshal and his staff had reviewed the parade on Beacon street, the companies passed onto the Common, where at the frog pond the playing commenced. As lots were drawn this is the order in which the machines play:

1—Watch City, Waltham. 2—Phenix, Marblehead. 3—Hingham, Hingham. 4—General Taylor, Everett. 5—Protector, Brockton. 6—Alabama Crew, Stoughton. 7—Defender, East Weymouth. 8—Roxbury Vets, Roxbury. 9—Paul Revere, Revere. 10—Telegraph, Berwick, Me. 11—Converse, Malden. 12—Eureka, Arlington. 13—White Angel, Salem. 14—Amesbury Vets, Amesbury. 15—City of Lawrence, Lawrence. 16—Relief, Rockport. 17—Tecumseh, Dorchester. 18—Red Jackets, Cambridge. 19—Governor Brad-street, Nor th Andover. 20—City of Lynn, Lynn. 21—D. A. R. Gaspee, Gardner. 22—Hancock, ex W. Lane, Manchester, N. H. 23—Edward A. Whiting, Holyoke. 24—Neponset, Neponset. 25—General Butler, Lowell. 26—Union, East Braintree. 27—Edgerwood, Edgerwood, R. I. 28—Gardner. 29—Putnam, Worcester. 30—Active, Bridgewater. 31—Escambia, Escambia, Fla. 32—Gloucester, Gloucester. 33—Hanover, Brockton. 34—Star of Jamaica, Jamaica Plain. 35—Androscoggin, Me. 36—City of Charleston, Charlestown. 37—Niagara, Brunswick, Me. 38—City of Keene, Keene, N. H. 39—Rose Rond and Ready, Templeton. 40—Enterprise, Brockton.

B. & A. GAVE SUPPERS TO LEGISLATORS

That the members of the legislative Committee on Railroads accepted suppers and refreshments from the "Boston & Albany Railroad, while that road, practically the New York Central, was vitally interested in bills under consideration by the committee, appears in the report filed by the corporation with the Secretary of State.

Henry E. Marsh, according to the report, was paid $17.10 by the Boston & Albany for "suppers for legislative committee."

E. E. Shaw collected $10.52 for "refreshments to the legislative committee."

Students of the annual returns of Legislative expenses point out that Mr. Shaw's suppers for the committee cost only 58 cents more than the "refreshments," served by Stone.

"The Boston & Albany report," said one of these students to-day at the State House, "is tantalizing in its brevity and inadequacy. For instance: What did the committee have for supper? How many of the fifteen members were present? And of what did the 'refreshments' consist? For the benefit of men who would like to get a good supper for a dollar or so these questions ought to be answered.

"That other question, why members of a legislative committee should be accepting suppers and 'refreshments' from a railroad while that railroad is a petitioner before the committee must be left for somebody else to answer. It is, or ought to be, a well-known fact that legislative committees are always reimbursed for their 'traveling expenses.' This committee went to Springfield."

PROBE HEAD-ON TROLLEY WRECK THREE INJURED

Investigation is being made by the Boston Elevated Railway to-day into a trolley collision in Eliot square just after mid night in which three people were painfully injured. It is thought the accident was caused by failure of the automatic switch in Eliot square to work at the proper time.

Miss Lena Keefe of No. 23 Bellflower street, Dorchester, is suffering to-day from injuries to her head and spine. Another who was hurt, is ex-Sealer of Weights and Measures William J. Campbell of No. 9 Mt. Vernon street, Dorchester. Mr. Campbell had his right ankle jammed so severely that he cannot use it at present. He is very well known in Dorchester district, and is one of the leading Democrats of Ward 16.

The third passenger hurt was Mrs. James Downey of No. 188 Washington street, Dorchester, who was severely bruised.

The cars in collision were a Brookline and Geneva avenue one and another of the Roxbury Crossing line. They met head-on at the corner of Roxbury and Centre streets. The vestibule glass in the Brookline car was shattered and was thrown into the other car by the force of the impact. One car was crowded and the other had fourteen passengers. All were shaken up.

EXPLOSION ON GUNBOAT; 1 DEAD

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A dispatch was received at the Navy Department to-day announcing that a boiler tube burst on the United States gunboat Wilmington at Nanking, China.

Fireman Philip Hiod was killed and two other men badly scalded.

QUEEN SETS FAD FOR SUMMER MUFFS

LONDON, July 30.—The Queen has set a new fashion, which, it is said, is likely to become one of the most popular fancies of the year. This is the Summer muff, a dainty trifle made of flowers, feathers and chiffon or tulle, which must match the wearer's toque and ruffle.

PATRIOTS HEAR STATE LAUDED BY GOVERNOR

Old Home Week Celebration in Symphony Hall for Country's Lovers.

REV. E. E. HALE PRESIDES

A RHYME FOR Old Home Week IN BOSTON.

By Julia Ward Howe.

Read at the Symphony Hall Exercises To-day.

ROME, on her hills of vantage throned,
Gave to the world her strenuous rule;
Isles of the sea her empire owned.
The Nations studied at her school.

Resplendent from her gates went forth
The legions of her proud defence;
And ery South, and frozen North,
Did homage to her eminence.

Heroic souls her counsels gave;
Wisdom her sturdy conquests held:
Her towering eagle, fierce and brave,
The tumult of the peoples quelled.

The forest breeds a better way
Than the mute clutch of Hapine saw.
Within her walls, to stand for law,
Was crowned the majesty of Law.

Our City is as goodly set,
Stately her hills, albeit but three
Glorious above her parapet
Floats the dear Flag of Liberty.

Strong sons, the nurslings of her hearth
For freedom won the western plains;
To-day, with happy pride of birth,
They come to show their splendid gains.

Fair towns they builded as they went;
Empires upon their forefeet grew;
For Justice stood their armament,
For all lit illustrious knew.

Now, welcome young and welcome old!
Salute with joy each sacred bound!
The cradle of your race behold!
Let the ancestral anthems sound!

And let our Boston, from her height,
Match with her hills her welcome three;
And crown them, as with benions bright,
With Faith and Hope and Charity.

Inspiring music from the Handel and Hadyn Society and oratory from the gifted sons of the Bay State marked the patriotic feature of the Old Home Week celebration to-day at Symphony Hall.

The program started off at 10:30 o'clock and the hall was well filled with an audience that showed its appreciation by a frequent applause. Joseph Quincy called the gathering to order and he said that the special feature of the occasion was to present Boston's position in the world of music.

The venerable Edward Everett Hale, D. D., acted as chairman. He spoke of the hospitality always extended to people of Boston wherever they go.

"If I should go to the North Pole," said Dr. Hale, "and find Peary sitting there, he would welcome me not because my name is Hale but because I am from Boston."

Governor Guild was introduced and was welcomed with a storm of handclapping.

Governor Guild, in his speech, said:

"Welcome to Commonwealth."

"We welcome you to a Commonwealth that is neither a summer resort nor a watery deposit vault. Commonwealthly small in area, it is true, but in population, in wealth, in industry, in education, in initiative, ready to do new enterprises with any other State in the Union. Massachusetts is not merely a Commonwealth with a splendid historic past. She is alike proud of a prosperous present and sanguine for an even more prosperous future.

"The Governor of New York has won deserved laurels by his public utilities bill for the regulation of public corporations. It is an axiom of modern conditions that if the State does not control the corporations the corporations will control the State. The first State in the Union to act on this principle was Massachusetts. No such struggle was necessary here this year, for there is no kind of public corporation in Massachusetts that is not already under some form of State supervision. Most of them were put there long ago.

"If in every respect control of public service corporations is not yet what it should be, the progressive Governor of the Empire State and the most progressive President since Lincoln have at least done us the compliment to acknowledge their indebtedness to Massachusetts as the whole country's pioneer in this path of legislation.

"Look Around You."

"If you study the movements in the Bay State's enterprise, do not look behind you look around you. European authorities admit that France alone surpasses Massachusetts in the excellence of her State highways, and that Massachusetts is the city in the world to use a subway for the relief of street traffic. Boston was the second and New York followed. The tunnel under Boston Harbor and the Hoosac tunnel ever built in the United States for the rapid transit of street passengers.

"Only the great dam of the Nile at Assouan exceeds in other dam or bulk equals in extent the huge metropolitan water works near Clinton. Yet every one of these great public works has been constructed for selfish, not for public ends. Not one contractor engaged in their construction has been asked for a cent by the political party in power. Not one dollar of money has been used pick or shovel has been misapplied that could be questioned.

"Such is the home we open to you, such is Massachusetts. She seeks no eulogy. She needs no apology. She is content to say with the proud simplicity of Webster: 'Behold her and judge for yourselves.'"

Mayor Fitzgerald, in the course of his address, said:

Boston Proud of Her Homes.

"Boston is proud of her homes of the past and of the present; she cherishes the traditions of the past, but she seeks to lift the latter to a higher level of material comfort, of intellectual knowledge and of moral influence. She can aspire to nothing higher than to be a city of true homes; her varied municipal activities are carried on primarily for the preservation and for the welfare of her home; the greatest and most costly of the Boston institutions, both supports, her public school system, is maintained for the benefit of the homes of the future—that in them may be a fuller knowledge of all that makes for the happiness of life and enlarges its spiritual significance.

"Let us be neither impatient or querulous. In the record, viewed as a whole, made by Boston men in the nineteenth century, is one that should fill all her citizens with gratitude and pride. She has sent out from among her children of every rank and calling, men who have brought a lasting fame to the city of their birth. Forty years ago Boston was the leading commercial city of the United States; to-day that position to the courage, foresight and determination of her merchants and financiers. This rank she must forever hold.

"The issue is in the hands of Boston's business men. If she is to regain this position of prominence which the men of the past secured for her, it can only be by the united efforts of her business men to-day. Upon them and upon the patriotism of the citizens of Boston is a great duty to be performed. Boston is a good city to live and do business in.

"Her suburbs are the admiration and the despair of the other cities of the State and the country. Within a few minutes' ride after a hard day's labor, may repair for rest and recreation. Nowhere in the whole country can such superb combination of business opportunity and residential seclusion be found as in the city of Boston, the city of one's love by day and by night, for our untiring energy and lasting affection."

GOV. JOHNSON NOT COMING TO TAMMANY CLUB OUTING

MINNESOTA'S DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE FINDS PRESENCE REQUIRED AT HOME.

John A. Johnson, the Democratic Governor of Minnesota—Henry Watterson's dark horse candidate for the presidency—will not be present on Saturday at the Whitney powwow of the Tammany Club of Ward 17.

He announces his regrets in the following telegram:

St. Paul, Minn., July 29.

Boston American, Boston, Mass.:

Regret that I shall not be able to attend outing of Tammany Democracy of Ward 17 on next Saturday. I regard my presence in Minnesota as essential because of certain labor difficulties in the Iron Range.

JOHN A. JOHNSON, Governor.

BURGLARS GET $5,000 LOOT IN CAMBRIDGE

Dwelling Houses and Stores Raided During "Old Home" Parades.

Burglars stole stock and property valued at nearly $5,000 in Cambridge yesterday and last night during the Old Home Week parades.

The biggest haul was at the home of John McFarland, No. 381 Broadway, where they scored three pairs of Cuffnet & Heels stock, which was quoted to-day at $600 a share.

Besides the stock they stole from Mr. McFarland eight dollars in bills, a five and a six-dollar gold piece, a pocketbook containing an unknown sum of money, Knights Templar chain and charm, gold necktie, silver cross, gold pendant, gold neckties, bloodstone ring, pearl ring, several gold stickpins and an old silver mounted revolver.

At the home of Daniel Anderson, No. 42 East street, Cambridgeport, also robbed in the afternoon, $17 in money was taken. From the residence of John Lynch, No. 1290 Cambridge street, the crooks secured an open face gold watch and a child's bank containing about two dollars in small change.

Turning their attention to stores, the burglars rifled the cash drawer of the store of Nathaniel Goldbrand by Edward F. Matthews at No. 2,006 Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, securing a small amount of change. They entered through the rear window. At the distributing outlet of the Hotel and Railroad News Company, Brattle street, no amount of change was secured.

At the store of Josephine La Rose, No. 2,448 Massachusetts avenue, the burglars were frightened away by patrolmen, who were attracted by the news of breaking glass, when the rear windows were smashed in an attempt to enter the store.

HOME WEEK CROWDS RUSH TO PARAGON

The biggest Monday attendance in the history of Paragon Park ushered in Old Home Week. It is quite evident that the charm at a trip down the harbor had figured in the memory of old residents of Boston.

The admission to the park is but ten cents and for this one may enjoy a whole day of free fun. In the free open air circus alone one gets much more than the worth of his money. Three great acts are to be found there, including exhibition high diver of the world, who plunges 150 feet into a tank of water, only three feet deep. Then "Human Spiders," who climb fingers and toes climbs to the top of the Flying Leaps, and the Nerina, the Swedish champions, who give a thrilling exhibition of trick cycling during culminating in the sensational Flying Leap.

The big show in the Baby Elephant, which wanders about the park unhindered and gets peanuts and pop corn from the hands of visitors.

The Somerset Animal Arena offers the greatest exhibition of trained wild animals ever shown, and the Human Roulette Wheel, Brattle street, is laughing all the time.

CANTABRIGIAN IS FINED FOR SPEEDING

PLYMOUTH, July 30.—Harry A. Stearns of Cambridge, in the high tariff court to-day was fined $15, which was imposed for over speeding his automobile in Duxbury on Sunday. Phillips Krusen, a Summer resident of Duxbury, received a similar fine, but Krusen appealed to the Superior Court. Levi W. Benson of Whitman, who formerly managed the Parker Hotel of the Brockton and Plymouth Street Railway Company, in Marshfield Grove was fined $100 by Judge Thompson for permitting the bar to be a licensed victualler without a license.

BEVERIDGE ARRIVES IN BERLIN TO WED

BERLIN, July 30.—Senator Beveridge arrived in Berlin to-day. He comes here for his wedding, which will take place on the afternoon of August 7. The bride-to-be is Miss Katherine Eddy, Rev. Thomas Hall of New York will officiate. David Graham Phillips will be best man.

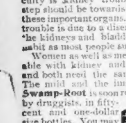
Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.



Kidney trouble press upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if when the child grows to age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend on it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these incommoding organs. Sometimes the trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a weak and sickly condition.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both find relief in Swamp-Root. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home of Swamp-Root.

ACTRESS, SUICIDE, EX-GOVERNOR'S CHILD

PITTSBURG, July 30.—It appears that Helen Bailey Trowbridge, the pretty Chicago actress who committed a equalling suicide here Saturday by stabbing herself, is the daughter of the late former Governor Bailey of Montana. The identification was made in the morgue by a stranger.

DEATH TERROR SEIZES MEN AT SWITCHBOARD

Strange Reign of Happenings Almost Supernatural Defies Solution.

Driven desperate by the deadly assault on Sunday night upon Joseph D. McCarthy, night operator at the Wellesley telephone exchange, officials of the company to-day appealed to the police to redouble their efforts to track down the person or persons who have made the last twenty months a reign of terror for the ten men who have tried to work as night operator at the office, one being slain and another the victim of a murderous attack.

McCarthy, who was struck down with some blunt instrument as he was at work before his switchboard, is the ninth man who has passed through a terrible experience since the night, now twenty months past, on which occurred the tragic death of Perry Parker.

He, too, was the night manager of the exchange. Early one morning he was found dead in his chair before the switchboard, shot through the head, the revolver with which the crime had been committed lying on the floor beside him.

It is believed that some monomaniac who seeks to injure the telephone company may be wreaking murderous vengeance on its employees.

Called Accidental Death.

Failing to solve the mystery, the police described the case as one of accidental shooting.

Since the night upon which Parker was slain, nine other men have gone to work at the Wellesley exchange as night operators. All of the first eight were driven from their work through manifestations which they said had occurred in the building at the dead hour of night, and which some of them ascribed to supernatural agencies.

The most rigid investigation has never disclosed any fact of value to clear the mystery of the telephone exchange.

While some of the operators have declared that while at work at night their ears were filled with blood-curdling shrieks, with pistol shots and with the sound of the opening and closing of heavy doors, accompanied by blasts of chilling wind that swept through the lonely office, not one of the operators was able to furnish data to help any in solving the mystery.

No human face, they said, had ever been seen in the office by any of them at night. They had seen no strangers or suspicious persons lurking about, and although some of the operators carried revolvers with them to their work they left soon like their unarmed fellows and said that the job was one that no man could hold.

No Clue to Assailant.

And now, just as the horror generated by the tragic death of Parker and sustained by a series of mysterious occurrences was wearing away, comes this murderous assault upon McCarthy.

In the details of that crime there is to be found no conclusive clue to the identity of the man or men that committed the attack or to the manner in which it was committed.

McCarthy left the office only once after going there to work on Sunday night. He went out to a nearby lunch room and there ate a lunch. He went back to his work. This was a few minutes after midnight.

Half an hour later Policeman Dunleavy tried to use the telephone in the police station. He could not "raise central." Remembering the strange events which had happened in the telephone exchange in the past twenty months, the policeman hurried from the station and ascended the stairs of the postoffice building in which the exchange is located.

As he walked in he saw McCarthy lying on the floor in front of the switchboard. Motionless. There was a great cut in his head and about the room were signs of a struggle which had occurred before the operator had been felled with some blunt instrument.

McCarthy May Live.

Policeman McMahon had McCarthy removed to a hospital. Surgeons said that his injuries were very grave. It is said to-day that there is a slight chance that he will recover.

The attention of the police then reverted to the series of mysterious events which had preceded the attack. Upon looking up the records they found that the following men had during the past twenty months gone to work at the exchange as night operators and that each of them had quit after a short term of service:

Joseph Gould, who stayed three months; George Slaney, one and a half months; James Everett, five months; Benjamin Leighton, one week; James Friedeth, one and a half months; James McManus, one month; Clarence Foss, one and a half months; John Flynn, who stayed only one night.

Flynn was the chief district operator, but one night in the Wellesley exchange was more than he had bargained for. He quit the next day and resigned from the service of the company.

Supernatural Visitors.

It was Flynn who, being asked what he had seen or heard during his one night in the exchange, answered:

"I will not talk about it. If I told what I saw I would be laughed at."

Foss, who had taken a revolver with him, said after he had quit:

"Of what use was a revolver against the supernatural?"

Mrs. I. J. Eldridge, who lives in Needham, and at whose house Perry Parker lived for five years before he was killed, said:

"I know Parker very well and I feel that he was murdered. The police, after they had failed to find any trace of his murderer, said that he had killed himself accidentally. They forget that he was one of the most careful men that ever handled firearms. I firmly believe that he was murdered."

Since the attack upon McCarthy the police have veered to the theory that Parker may not have been killed accidentally after all. But the curse that lies over the exchange has not been lifted, and investigation seems to increase rather than to dispel the mystery.

Injured Man's Story.

McCarthy recovered late yesterday in the Newton Hospital for a short time. He told what little he knew about the mysterious assault. He said:

"I had gone into a rear room which leads from the front room, in which is located the switchboard, for a few minutes. I heard nothing unusual while I was there. After a few moments I returned and had just seated myself at the board, when suddenly something hit me a terrific blow on the back of the head.

"I fell over, but got a good look at the stranger before becoming unconscious. I would know him if I saw him again. He was a tall man with a black moustache, and he wore dark clothes and a black derby hat."

Joseph D. Heeschemer of Maplewood was fined $50 in the Malden District Court to-day, charged with having cruelly beaten his horse in Melrose.

NEW RED DOLLAR GIRL AT WONDERLAND SUNDAY

Substitution Will Add to Excitement of Chase—More Gold Than Ever to Be Hidden.

An interesting feature of the Buried Treasure hunt at Revere Beach and in Wonderland next Sunday will be the appearance of a new Red Dollar Girl.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will hide $250 instead of $200 in gold next Sunday, as well as 150 tickets that will admit to nearly all of the attractions of Wonderland.

In next Sunday's AMERICAN an installment of the thrilling story of the Red Dollar Signs will contain the hints that will enable you to find the gold.

You will also find a graphic story by the Red Dollar Girl, who has become such an interesting feature of the exciting money hunts. Some and address of this girl will be printed, as well as a splendid new photograph of her.

The Girl, in this story, will give some inside information that may prove valuable to those who seek the New Girl.

Twenty dollars of the $200 is gold hidden in Paragon Park and on Sanlando's Beach on Sunday, has not yet been reported as found.

C. H. Merrill of East Weymouth walked into the office of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day and reported the finding of a $5 gold piece in the sand near the band stand.

REVERE RESORTS ACCEPTING COUPONS ESCAPED FLAMES

In the fire that laid waste an acre of buildings at Revere Beach Sunday night several small shopkeepers lost their entire stocks, and promoters of large amusement enterprises were nervous over the possibilities of a general fire.

The Wonderland fire department was first on the scene, and did splendid work before being reinforced by the regular Revere fire department.

The amusement resorts on Revere Boulevard and Avenue for which the SUNDAY AMERICAN publishes coupons each week, some of them very close to the scene of fire, all escaped. They are Theatre Comique, Fairyland Theatre, Rough Rider Hippodrome, Hurley's Hurdlers, Palace Merry-Go-Round, Rollaway Skating Rink, Myrtle Hill, Automobile Race, Roller Coaster and Musical Railway.

At Canobie Lake Park Publicity Manager E. J. Ellis states:

"The SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons are taking well at our park, especially on Fridays. The electrical fountain is in operation every night and proves a fine park feature.

"Gorman's High Diving Horses are performing this week in two free exhibitions daily. The public recognizes the merit of our park, being the only big one in this vicinity, and our business is good all of the time.

"The diving horses are the original 'King' and 'Queen.' The act is performed on the athletic grounds. The horses dive from a considerable height and actually strike the water with their forefeet first. They require no urging to perform the feats, and how to take it as a matter of course. The diving act is held at the close of each regular theatre performance."

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will again publish free tickets to Lexington Park and Manager Beeson's big animal preserves, a most popular family woodland resort.

SEEK RELEASE OF PETTIBONE UNDER BONDS

BOISE, Idaho, July 30.—Attorney Clarence Darrow asks Judge Wood to-day to fix a bond for George Pettibone, one of the Western Miners' Federation leaders, accused of complicity in the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg. Pettibone, in fact, is asserted by the prosecution to have been the leader in the murder plot. The prosecution was consequently prepared to resist to the utmost any attempt to secure his release on bonds, and the indications were Judge Wood would uphold them.

Moyer was greatly pleased when informed that Judge Wood had ordered his release under a $25,000 bond and was preparing to leave the jail when told that Pettibone would be left alone behind him. Upon receiving this information he instantly declared that he would not accept bail unless Pettibone was released with him. Attorney Darrow, convinced that he cannot secure Pettibone's release until after his trial, tried to argue Moyer out of this resolution early to-day, but without avail.

Haywood, his wife, children and mother will start for Denver to-morrow or Thursday, preferring to remain here until they know what disposition will be made of the cases of Moyer and Pettibone.

WIFE CLAIMS AYRES SAVED ROUGH RIDERS

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Mrs. Elisabeth Fairfax Ayres, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Ayres, recently retired, today gave out a statement charging that the retirement of her husband without advanced rank is base ingratitude.

Mrs. Ayres, whose leading part in the "overcoat incident" at West Point brought the army squabble that ended in her husband's retirement, in order to avoid the necessity of a court-martial for him for unfriendly criticism of brother officers, declares that Colonel Ayres, serving with the Tenth Cavalry, saved President Roosevelt's troops at San Juan.

Colonel Ayres evidently contemplates a civil suit against certain army officers, as the result of reports made concerning the "overcoat incident."

Concluding Mrs. Ayres says:

"I appealed for protection to the President and told the world know how he treated me. We are only too glad to be out of the army. We have blame to lick him out in the way they did on $250 a month."

Two Men Attacked, Eight Flee From "Haunted" Switchboard

Of the ten night operators employed in the last twenty months at the Wellesley Telephone Exchange, Perley Parker was killed with a pistol, Joseph D. McCarthy is now dangerously wounded as the result of a mysterious midnight attack and eight others left the position after short experience with weird happenings which some of them declared bordered on the supernatural. The operators were:

Perly Parker, shot to death.
Joseph Gould, stayed three months.
George Slaney, one and a half months.
James Everett, five months.
Benjamin Leighton, one week.
James Friedeth, one and a half months.
James McManus, one month.
Clarence Foss, one and a half months.
Joseph Flynn, one night.
Joseph D. McCarthy, attacked at switchboard, may die.

OPERATION TO SAVE HUNTINGTON'S LIFE

VERSAILLES, France, July 30.—In a final effort to save the life of Alonzo Huntington, who was shot by his brother, Henry, in the latter's murderous assault on four members of his family, an operation was performed to-day. The bullets were removed from his head and body. His condition is still critical. The condition of the two sisters and other brother shot by Henry is reported much improved.

400 SCHENECTADY MOLDERS ON STRIKE

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 30.—Four hundred molders employed at the General Electric plant are not working to-day. Work in the foundry is slack and the company laid off forty-three men. The union asked the company to keep the entire force on shorter hours until work picked up again, but the management refused.

VISITORS' DAY IN CAMBRIDGE OLD HOME WEEK

This is "Visitors' Day" in the Cambridge Old Home Week celebration. Hundreds of former Cantabrigians are in town, renewing old acquaintances and seeing the Charles bridge of to-day. In the morning the visitors inspected the vacation schools and their work. The schools open are the Shepard, Webster, Putnam, Roberts, English High and Rindge Manual Training. The Cambridge Ladies' Associate Old Home Week Committee held "open house" all day at Massachusetts Hall, Harvard University. Volunteer guides were on hand and every hour large parties set out to see the historic spots of the University City. The guides were furnished by Hannah Winthrop Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and other patriotic organizations.

Two big receptions are on in the afternoon. In Massachusetts Hall, Harvard University, from 4 to 6 o'clock, Mayor and Mrs. Walter C. Wardwell received past and present Cantabrigians. In the receiving line assisting were Mrs. Austin C. Wellington, Mrs. George D. Ford and Mrs. Henry Grant Weston. Another reception that was largely attended was that of the Library Trustees' Association, Dr. E. A. McCarthy chairman, which was held in the Cambridge Public Library from 4 to 6 o'clock. Former members of the board of library trustees and also former members of the library staff were received.

This evening at 8 o'clock there will be four excellent band concerts. The bands and the places will be as follows: Stewart's band at Cambridge Field, Tool's band at Central square, Salem Cadet band at the Cambridge Common, and the Boston Municipal band at Rindge Field.

SOLDIERS MAKE WAR ON FOOD AT STATE CAMP

FRAMINGHAM, July 30.—Short barrels of potatoes, doling out foodstuffs by guesswork instead of by weighing, and a general complaint that the food costs too much and that there is too little of it are the major kicks in a big grouch that has settled down of the First Brigade Camp.

The officers blame the quartermasters. The quartermasters blame the prevailing high prices. The men blame the officers and the quartermasters impartially.

Some of the company commanders say they are not getting full weight from the quartermaster's department in their requisition. They declare that the quartermaster hasn't correct scales and just guessed at the quantity desired.

The potato shortage is also a burning issue. A potato barrel is supposed to hold two and one-half bushels. The Framingham barrels contain only a stingy two bushels of "spuds," and the men declare.

In consequence of the alarming increase in the company food bills cheap meals have been advocated. This item will relieve the treasury, but it won't make a hit with the regimental palates.

Track Hub Leaders of Armenian Band of Blackmailing Slayers

NINE MEN ROUNDED UP AND MURDER SYMBOLS CAPTURED IN STARTLING RAIDS.

Following the arrest of nine of the alleged leaders of the Armenian terrorist society that is held responsible for the murder of millionaire rug dealer Tavshanjian in New York, the police of Boston were communicated with the authorities of Boston and gave them information which, it is believed, will result in important arrests today in Boston.

M. H. Gulesian, the Boston man who was marked by the blackmailing organization for death yesterday, but who was not molested, said today that the arrest of one or two more of the band would break up their attempts at intimidation in this country.

Mr. Gulesian went about his duties as usual today. While not frightened, he is ever on the lookout, and is armed for the protection of himself. His wife is almost prostrated as a result of the threat made against her husband.

Arising at 7:30 o'clock at his Newton home, Mr. Gulesian took the car after breakfast and rode into the city, alighting opposite the Hotel Lenox at Boylston and Exeter streets. He walked three blocks to the new garage he is constructing on Irvington street in the Back Bay district. Here he spent the forenoon looking after the work of construction, leaving there at 12:30 to take lunch in a downtown hotel.

Slayer Lived in Lowell.

It developed to-day that the young man who killed the New York rug dealer is Bedros Kachadorian, and that he had recently lived at the home of his uncle in Lowell. The assassin, it is declared, is a close friend of Levont Martoogessian, former Worcester priest, who is now under arrest in New York.

Father Martoogessian had lost much of his defiant attitude when arraigned in police court. He was calm, however, and says he will have no trouble in showing that he has no connection with any blackmailing plots.

From the District Attorney's office the prediction is confidently made that the disclosures of Hampartzoomian's confession will astonish the world, provide the authorities with a list of many of the blackmailers' leaders, reveal the names of numbers of their victims and show just what men, in this and other countries, are marked for the society's vengeance.

Conspired in Boston.

The priest and his assassin, it is declared, have been in Boston together. It is declared that the priest was in Boston last Saturday, and that the police of this city were expected to arrest him then, but did not.

Armenians of Worcester, where Father Martoogessian was formerly a preacher, expressed themselves to-day as being satisfied that the police of New York had got the right man. From the first the Worcester Armenians named the priest openly as being the leader of the blackmailing band, but he did not seem to be frightened at this, and made no attempt to get away from his usual haunts in New York.

Father Martoogessian was charged with attempted robbery and blackmail during the months of July and August, 1906, the sums ranging from $1,000 to $20,000.

Faces Serious Charges.

It is expected by the District Attorney that a more serious charge will be lodged against him shortly, as the mysterious man in the Tombs who assassinated Tavshanjian was identified yesterday by a woman who claims to have seen the murderer in the company of Father Martoogessian shortly before the murder.

Three of the men arrested with Martoogessian were afterward released, but the remaining six prisoners were held under a charge of suspicion pending the hearing. The former leader of the Hunchakist society will have this morning.

"The authorities declare they have a mass of evidence of the blackmailing methods of a band of Armenians, and they say the society will be broken up immediately.

Murder Symbols Found.

One striking evidence of the methods of the band was revealed by the discovery in the alleged headquarters here of a collection of cards, one of which contained the photographs of three former members of the Hunchakist society, all under the suspicion of being traitors and were murdered.

Beneath the photographs of three assassinated men upon the calendar is a rifle pistol, with a figure of a hand thrusting a dagger into each of the hearts. A description beneath the lithographs gives the names of the three victims, the date of their assassination, and the wording, as to these, to all traitors.

The body of one of these men who is said to have first identified Bedros Hampartzoomian, the murderer of Tavshanjian, in the the Tombs yesterday.

The blow struck by the police yesterday was forecasted exclusively in the American yesterday. The assassin in the Tombs had persisted in silence until yesterday noon, when a young man, said to be the son of a man named Chrijian, who was tracked to Odessa by agents of the blackmailing society and murdered, identified the prisoner in the Tombs as a man he had known in connection with the murder of his father.

Woman as Accuser.

Shortly afterward a woman identified the prisoner as a man she had seen with Father Martoogessian shortly before the murder on the square in Bath last week.

Then a nephew of the murdered merchant was sent to interview the prisoner in his cell. The nephew was dressed all in black, and he approached the prisoner for having killed the best friend Armenians ever had.

The prisoner broke down and said he had been deceived, and if he thought he had killed a good man, he would tell all. Whereupon he said more to the authorities refuse to divulge, but by 5 o'clock they set about preparing their cards for New York.

2 WOMEN SLAIN BY STRANGLERS

the house finally broke in the door to find the woman dead.

ROOM HIRED BY COUPLE.

Two weeks ago Sunday a man and a woman hired a room from Mrs. Carthage, the housekeeper, giving the name of Davis or Davidson. The man and woman were last seen together late Sunday night entering their room. An hour later the man left alone. It was late Monday night before the door was forced open and the murder discovered.

The areway crime was probably committed some time last night, the woman's body being found early to-day. Finger prints on the throat showed how she met death.

The woman had the appearance of an Italian or Armenian and the suggestion has been made that she may have fallen victim to a feud, or a "Black Hand" outrage, or to some connection with the much talked of Armenian blackmail society. The police, however, think she was a maniac's victim and are working on that theory.

The murder was probably committed shortly after 11 p. m. Sunday, though it may have been done about 5 a. m. yesterday. The body was not discovered until 6 o'clock last evening.

The woman was strangled with a man's tube and white polka-dot necktie. It was knotted around her neck so tightly that the skin of the throat was broken and some of the blood vessels ruptured.

No. 475 West Twenty-Second street is a furnished rooming house of the better class, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dayton. The neighborhood is a good one. Two weeks ago Sunday a man who answered to the name of Davis called on an Assyrian hired a room in the house from Mrs. Carthage. The housekeeper, He was assigned to a small, front room on the second floor. Originally the room was a large one, but a wooden partition had been run lengthwise through the middle, dividing it into two rooms. The partition ran only partially into the ceiling, because of ornamental plaster work in the corners, from which a chandelier formerly hung.

BROUGHT WIFE TO DIE.

Though he was plainly a foreigner the man gave the name of Charles Davis or Davidson, the Daytons are not certain which. He said he would bring his wife around later. The following Tuesday he appeared at the house with two suit cases

'Mike,' Newport's Pet Dog, Stricken with Rabies, Saved by Nursing

"MIKE," PRETTY DOROTHY CARROLL'S TERRIER.

NEWPORT, July 29.—"Mike" the pet fox terrier, the property of Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, which went mad and terrified society folks on the lawns of the Newport Golf Club is "out of danger and convalescing," according to the latest bulletin from Dr. Horseman's hospital for dogs.

No infant has been nursed with greater care than this little fox terrier since he was cornered by Big Constable Ash after every man, woman and child had fled to a place of safety in the Newport Golf Club grounds snapping at everyone and frothing at the mouth.

Skilled veterinarians have watched every symptom and those who claim to know say that Dr. Horseman "sat up" two nights with his patient.

"Mike" is the pet of Dorothy Carroll, the beautiful 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll. The Carrolls are noted for their love for pet dogs. On the grounds of their Clay street Villa, a mortuary was erected at the cost of several thousand dollars. In it was placed the body of the famous $1,000 gordon setter Dan when he passed away in 1904.

and the next day the woman, who, he said, was his wife, joined him.

The stranger described as Davis or Davidson is about thirty years old, five feet six inches in height and weighs about 130 pounds. He has dark skin, dark eyes, long black hair, and was clean shaven when last seen.

His wife was about twenty-four years old, had a clear complexion, dark hair, a good figure and was good looking. The other lodgers in the house thought she was a German-American. They never had any opportunity or desire to talk to her, the new comers were not a welcome addition to the household.

The other lodgers didn't like their looks and doubted whether they were man and wife. The man usually wore a black soft shirt and sometimes a peaked leather hat such as chauffeurs wear. He left the house early in the morning and returned at night anywhere from 8 to 10 o'clock. The woman also spent most of her time away from the house. She usually wore a gray skirt and a white shirtwaist and did not seem to be particularly well clothed.

The criticism of the other lodgers decided Mr. and Mrs. Dayton to ask the couple to leave the house. Last Friday Mrs. Dayton told the man he would have to get a room elsewhere. Not wishing to offend the lodger Mr. Dayton told him the housekeeper made a mistake when she rented the room to him, that it had already been rented to another person.

MAY JAIL FRYE FOR CONTEMPT IN EDDY CASE

Science Leader's Secretary and Wilson, His Assistant, Refuse to Testify.

NEW SURPRISE IN SUIT

CONCORD, N. H., July 30.—Declaring that they can not be compelled to give testimony until they appear before the masters commissioned to determine as to the competency of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, Secretary Calvin A. Frye and Mr. Cornell Wilson, his assistant, to-day face the charge of contempt before Magistrate Edmund S. Cook, who has intimated that he will issue attachments for contempt in such case.

If this is done, both men may be committed to the Merrimack County jail until habeas corpus proceedings can be brought to test the legality of the proceeding.

This situation is the most unexpected of the many surprising features of the Eddy case. Until former Senator William E. Chandler arrived from his summer home at Waterloo yesterday it had been expected that the taking of the depositions of any person within the jurisdiction of the court would not be attempted on account of the rulings of the masters upon that point last Friday.

Senator Chandler now claims that the masters' ruling is not sufficiently decisive to prevent them taking the depositions and even if it were, they have a statutory right to the matter that even the court itself can not overcome.

Streeter Refuses Appearance.

They believe that they can go ahead and take the depositions and that the courts cannot refuse to receive them as evidence.

When Magistrate Cook informed Mr. Streeter by telephone that he was ready to proceed Mr. Streeter declined to appear with the witnesses already summoned.

A second set of summonses were issued for Mrs. Laura E. Sargent and H. Cornell Wilson. Mr. Frye was summoned for the first time. At the appointed time, Mr. Streeter appeared with Mr. Wilson only.

General Streeter read a long protest against the taking of depositions. Nearly an hour was consumed before the magistrate ruled that the depositions should go on.

"Please state your name, age and occupation," said Mr. Kelley, Senator Chandler's associate counsel.

The dapper young secretary slowly arose from his seat and from a typewritten manuscript read

Declines to Answer.

"For the reason stated by my counsel and by his advice I decline to give my deposition at this time, inasmuch as I intend to be present at the hearing before the master August 1 and subsequently submit myself to such examination as they may direct."

The protest of General Streeter had prepared counsel for the next friends for this stand of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Kelley immediately moved for an attachment for contempt.

LET AMERICAN BUREAU FIND YOUR FRIENDS

Free Information for Old Home Week Visitors and Those Seeking Them.

REGISTER YOUR NAME

The busiest information bureau of Boston is situated at No. 80 Summer street. This bureau is free to the population of Old Home Weekers, is free of charge and has every facility to assist the inquirer.

A large variety of folders explaining about trolley trips, steamboat rides, fishing boats, train timetables, parade routes, entertainments and points of historical interest can be had for the asking. The quickest and easiest ways to get around and see historical points in Boston and suburbs and how to make connections for all points in New England are all told to the best advantage.

A registry of reliable places to stay and dine is kept for the assistance of late arrivals.

Inquiries about old friends are filed by index and at last no information is obtained it is sent out.

Way to Find Your Friends.

The bureau is situated on the first floor close to the street. If you have just arrived you should register your name and let the bureau locate your friends. If you are residents of Boston and you think that out of town friends will be in Boston Old Home Week, send in their names and ask them, through the columns of the BOSTON AMERICAN, to call on you or let you know where they are stopping.

Even one who has been away from Boston twenty years need not hesitate to avail himself of the assistance of the AMERICAN'S Old Home Week Bureau.

Visitors from near and far will interestingly of the city to-day as compared with that of earlier days.

W. H. Austin of Pasadena, Cal., who has been asked for, is staying at No. 27 Codman park.

O. A. Farwell left Boston in 1821, when four years old. He remembers how he could see the masts of the ships in Boston Harbor from where he lived in Roxbury.

J. W. Flanagan of Chicago has not been in Boston since he left it twenty years ago. Mr. Flanagan made the bureau clerk, "I am a reader of the Chicago Examiner and a firm believer in the principles enunciated by the newspapers of Mr. William Randolph Hearst. Naturally I came directly to the AMERICAN'S Information Bureau for assistance."

After finding an address for Mr. Flanagan the bureau explained that "Boston has changed greatly since I was here. he said, "I remember the Boston fire. The changes effected then are nothing to the ones since. When I was here all this district around the office of the AMERICAN was given up to the leather trade. My father was in that business. The South Station has made a big difference.

"That was a great victory for Mr. Darrow in the Haywood verdict. He is a personal friend of mine and I am a great admirer of Bird. The Republican Progressive League in Massachusetts doing? I am an active member in Chicago and we expect to see the League grow into a national power."

Inquiries Just Received.

The following are the latest calls for information:

Frank Beetle, formerly a resident of Richmond, Ind., and now living in Boston, caught a glimpse of ——— Rose, a younger brother of an old Richmond friend of his. He is anxious to see Mr. Rose, and wants him to leave his address at the BOSTON AMERICAN Bureau.

O. A. Farwell, a Detroit member of the New England Society, is at the American House. He wishes to hear from other Detroit members who may be in Boston.

Should Mrs. Lile Hammersley or her sisters, Kate or Mabel, or any of their friends visit Boston during Old Home Week and see this, please call at No. 27 Hemenway street, Roxbury, and see Mrs. Mary McAskill.

James Collins and Michael Collins, both natives of Ireland, left Boston thirty years ago. All information will be gladly received by their brother, W. A. Collins, No. 2 Paris court, Everett.

Seek John Regan.

John Regan, son of the late Peter Regan of Boyle, Ireland. Last heard of in Boston, where he was supposed to be at work in a tannery. Rumored that he was in Leominster. Information will be gladly received by his sister.

Edmond Stack is asked for by Andrew Hanson of Superior, Wis. He thinks he lives in or near Boston.

T. Ashley is inquired for by F. A. Putney of Ypsilanti, Mich. He believes he lives in Brighton or Allston.

NEW YORK SWELTERS UNDER HOT WAVE

NEW YORK, July 30.—New York sweltered in another hot wave to-day. The unpleasant weather of the past few days came to an end during the early morning hours, and some of the hottest weather of the year is predicted before the end of the wave. The humidity rose to the high level of 91 early to-day, adding greatly to the suffering throughout the city. Many prostrations were recorded, and thousands sought refuge at the seashore.

Bits and Girl of Choice Slip Away, Are Married

MRS. JACOB RIIS, NEE MISS MARY A. PHILLIPS.

Then Vanish in Motor Boat in Genuine Romantic Fashion.

Outwitting even their best friends, Jacob Riis, author, sociologist and intimate friend of President Roosevelt, was last night secretly married to his affinity, Miss Mary Ann Phillips, at Ipswich. In a motor boat the couple fled to sea to escape congratulations from friends, then who had heard of their marriage and had called to extend greetings and best wishes.

In a handsome coach Mr. Riis and his bride-to-be went to the Ascension Memorial Church. On their arrival there they were greeting by Mrs. and the Misses Phillips, while from another direction, at about the same time, Miss Elizabeth Wade of Ipswich approaching in those who saw the couple when they took the boat.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Reginald Pearce, the rector, stepped from an anteroom. The simple service of the Episcopal church was read and Mr. Riis and Miss Phillips were proclaimed man and wife. Miss Wade and Mr. Smith appeared as witnesses.

The only member of the two families who was missing was Mr. Phillips, father of the bride, he being detained in St. Louis, the family home, by business.

Mr. Riis and his bride took a short route to the Ipswich river in the same carriage that brought them to the church. There they embarked on a motor boat, first flying the carriage driver to keep a close mouth about his fares to those who didn't know, and to profess ignorance of the wedding when those who saw the couple when they took the boat.

It was stated in Ipswich that before leaving on the motor boat Mr. Riis had dictated a telegram to his friend, President Roosevelt, informing him of his marriage.

Thousands of people surging through the streets applauded the marchers. The parade left the Columbus Associates club room, No. 124 North street, and traversed the following streets: North, Fleet, Hanover, Charter, Salem, Hanover, Washington, Devonshire, Milk, Federal to the South Station.

Chief Marshal F. Cavagnaro headed the paraders, followed by Merritt's First Regiment Band of twenty-one pieces and the Columbus Associates and friends.

Until dusk to-night there will be all kinds of athletic events, dancing and vaudeville at the grove. The features will be a ball game between the Bennetts and the Salems for a $20 purse, and a fat man's race between F. Cavagnaro, weight 348 pounds, and A. Gavarino, weight 303 pounds, for a silver trophy.

TELLS LIES TO RELIEVE MONOTONY

"Prince of Liars," Made in Germany, Is Lively Little Comedy.

Sydney Grundy's amusing little comedy, "The Prince of Liars," which, like so many other entertaining mechanical toys, was in its original form "made in Germany," was played at the Park theatre last night by Lillian Lawrence, Charles Miller and their associates. It was preceded by a sympathetic rendition of the little one-act classic, "The Littlest Girl." When Mr. Grundy Englished the Berlin farce he did not trouble to draw characters that bore much resemblance to those of real life. He took up the handy and conventional characters—the members of a household in which the head of the house is the central figure toward the primrose path, and he threw this household into comic adventure of one sort and another.

Lillian Lawrence played the "Gutta Percha" who found her way into the sitting room of a solidly respectable and deadly dull family. Charles Miller played the adventurous member of that family, who while in search of an "Arabian Nights" adventure, met the "Gutta Percha Girl."

John Saintpolis contrived a fussy little character bit and the other members of the company acquitted themselves in a satisfactory fashion. All in all, the revival is interesting and worth seeing.

HUGE THRILLER IS "CONVICT 999"

"Convict 999," which is to run this week at the Grand Opera House, is a melodrama composed of a succession of startling and thrilling adventures. The events follow swiftly on each other's heels, and one of the features is the thrilling acts of Captain Kelley's troupe of dare-devil men. Jeffreys, George Wheaker, who takes the leading role, give a good character sketch. As Alice Richardson, Elizabeth Rathbern is very pleasing.

OLD-TIME SHOW AT AUSTIN & STONE'S

At Austin & Stone's there is an old-time museum show. Strong men, knife-throwers, bag-punchers, Trixie, the snake charmer; the Grimm Bros., the magic marvels; Bridgefield, the ventriloquist; Punch and Judy, Maserati, the anatomical wonder; a beautiful Albino women and the famous Isabella troupe of musicians are among the features. Professor Hutchings, fresh from Cape Cod, gives hourly addresses. The Theatre Majeure gave a cordial welcome to visitors to a poem, and besides the Minstrel Maids, there was a rattling show at the theatre by Murphy and Talby, Irish comedians; Montrel Brigham and the Meadows Comedy Company.

MOTION PICTURES AT HUB THEATRE

"The Special Adaptation" and Ben F. Loring are this week's bits at the Hub Theatre. "Drunkards in Spite of All," "My Lady's Revenge," "Fighting Ninth," "Defying Motorists" and "Sham Beggar" were the funny numbers, while "The Lighthouse Keeper on the High Seas" was the sensational number, with a good plot and wonderful settings. Illustrated songs by Drew and Collier and the Ladies' Orchestra are features.

"FIGHTING NINTH" TO HOLD 40TH REUNION

The survivors of the "Fighting Ninth" Regiment, who gained this complimentary name for their gallantry in the Civil War, will hold their fortieth annual reunion to-morrow at the Nantasket Hotel, Nantasket Beach. The dinner will start at 1:30 o'clock. Out of a total membership of 1,601 men, there are only living now 123. Major George W. Dutton of Stoughton will call the meeting to order.

"GREEN BIRD" DRIVES AWAY THE BLUES QUICKLY

NEW BOSTON-MADE MUSICAL COMPANY BIDS FAIR TO ESTABLISH A RECORD.

The Green Bird, plumage new, cage new, wings strong, broke its shell last night at the Majestic Theatre, in Old Home Week, flew out, and made good. It seemed to be that rara avis, long an object of search by stage naturalists, something unique from the tropical land of Musical Comedy.

The Green Bird, of course, is a man; likewise his running mate, the Blue Monkey. You are prepared for that after the "Wizard of Oz" and others of the same. But the Green Bird had been the property of the manager of John J. Jones of Chicago, the glib and slangy proprietor of Jones's Dandy emporium of birds, beasts and brica-brac.

And Mr. Jones, the same being Fred Lennox, last seen here on the Keith circuit with a fine piano playlet, eager to the island of Okoko to recover his treasure.

King Rumatio (George A. Schiller), who believes in signs, keeps a plumber, who is also an astrologer, the star gazer (Will H. Sloan) has not turned out a prophecy which does not find that Okoko is to have a new king, whose name shall be first pronounced by the letter B. Mr. Jones's green bird—the only green bird on Okoko—will say but one word, "Jones." When they find him, "Jones" is what he says and all he says. Which might have been pleasant for Jones if Saitz, the royal astrologer, had not just finished a little horoscope for Lalapaloosa, the fattest girl on the island, referring the name of her future husband to the same Green Bird, with the precious result that the man named refused to take her, the king—as the price of his crown—must compel him to.

And the Green Bird says "Jones."

All nonsense, say you? But the bills promise nothing Shakespearian, and this is but a week, son, and be cool and happy. See the Green Bird!

Manager Adolph Mayer, for the Standard Amusement Company, has picked a company which did so well on the much feared "first night" as to suggest that it had been out with the piece for half a season, rather than a week. Except as aforesaid, Will Sloan and George Schiller, ditto. Alice Hosmer, as the "Lulu" who wants a man; John Kennedy, as the Wild Man who has retired from the show business; Eleanor Kent, to sing the real music as one of the daughters of Rumatio; Elsa Ryan and a sweet and winsome personality in the role of a Western heiress, and others too numerous to mention. John Lorenz is the bird—and a bird.

Well, the first night's audience was surprised, astonished, satisfied. Which signifies to the initiated that in a few nights "The Green Bird" will be solidly in the way of establishing a new record. It was pleasing to read on the bills that costumes and accessories all came from the stores and supply houses of Boston. "The Green Bird" will drive away the blues.

OUTDOOR PARKS AND TRIPS FAVORED

It's more than a twice-told tale at Wonderland: it's an oft-repeated story of great crowds and great enjoyment. Those who have been absent from Boston and vicinity for a time will be benefited by the sights and sounds of Wonderland. Among the free entertainments this week are the famous Kishinura Japanese troupe of athletes; Rose and Harry Wentworth, in one of the most fascinating equestrian exhibitions ever seen; Minting, the marvel, who on a single wheel climbs to the top of a fifty-foot pole and descends; George Whittaker, the lady vocalist; Seikinoh, Japanese juggler; Strachan's Ninth Regiment, M. W. M. Band; the Wonderland harlequins, and the picturesque board walk parades at 2 and 7 o'clock every day.

Old Home Week crowds began going to Norumbega Park yesterday quite promptly. The vaudeville programme this week is excellent. Hendrick the Bear is Valleda and her five leopards. Mario, Borger and Mario present a novel horizontal triple-bar act. Martini and Maxmillian, burlesque musicians; Rogers and Hamilton; Knox brothers, instrumental comedians, and Carroll Mr. and Mrs. Carroll and singing comedian, complete the bill.

* * *

Tourist travel to Nova Scotia and the Provinces is exceedingly heavy, Yarmouth, the main line of travel to the Provinces. The eight-trip per week service of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Line is eagerly patronized on account of the splendid service offered by the fast, comfortable steamers. The "Boston," "Prince George" and "Yarmouth" are models of comfort.

"I'm from Seattle, and I never was East before. The snorkeling man in the subway, the Elevated. "Gee! but it's hot weather. Why, I was over yesterday on a boat across the bay to the Cape. Never saw anything like it. Blue Hills Street! Enjoyed every minute of it. Queer old town that. Had a fine time at Cape Cod, too. Had a fine ride up and down, got dinner and got back to Boston at quarter to five. Fine. Must tell my folks about it." Of course he will tell them. The steamer Cape Cod makes daily trips to Provincetown and return.

Bass Point is to be aglow with light this week. Thousands of thousands of little flaring jets of electricity will welcome the thousands of visitors who will visit the attractive resort. It is to be a "White Night" at Bass Point, and visitors are to be dazzling palaces of fire, just speaking in figures.

* * *

Old Home Week was ushered in at the Paragon Park yesterday by the largest Monday crowd in the history of Nantasket Beach's popular amusement resort. The crowd began to assemble at 1:30 in the afternoon and kept coming until after 11 o'clock. The bill includes Speedy, the man who dives 150 feet through the air into a tank of water only thirty-five feet deep; the Norias, trick and fancy diving, and a high wire act. Dancing is permitted.

'LITTLE BUTTERCUP' COMES BACK HOME

"Dear Little Buttercup," the leader of the King's "navee" and the other well-known characters of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pinafore" joined the Old Home Week festivities last evening for a week's run at the Castle Square Theatre. Otis B. Thayer, as Sir Joseph; J. K. Murray, as Captain Corcoran; Harry Davies, as Rackstraw; Lois Ewell, as Josephine, and Hattie Belle Ladd, as "dear Little Buttercup," could not have been better in their respective roles. George Shields did his best character work of the season as Dick Deadeye.

The two acts of the comic opera are given, together with Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," in which Clara Lane, as Santuzza; Louise La Baron, as Lola; George Tallman, as Turiddu; J. K. Murray, as Alfio, and Hattie Belle Ladd, as Lucia, will be seen to good advantage. Mr. Davies and Mr. Tallman will alternate the roles of Rackstraw and Turiddu for the rest of the week.

and at night a "fire dive"; Don Pedro Maurego, "The Human Spider," who performs the trick on the Blue Hills Street Railway leave the Dudley street terminal for Blue Hills reservation, via Mattapan; and visitors to Boston during Old Home Week will certainly miss it if they do not take in the magnificent scenery to be had in such a short and delightful ride from the heart of the city.

FINE BURLESQUES AT THE PALACE

There is a splendid bill of burlesque and vaudeville at the Palace Theatre this week for Old Home Week visitors. The burlesques, "Frolics of a Night," by John Black, and "Her, What Is It?" by F. F. Thomas, are two of the funniest skits in which the Palace organization has ever appeared. The musical numbers are especially good. Those who made hits were Grace Toledo, Pearl Black, Louise Brandon, Aimee Barnard and Annie Goldie. There are two shows a day and smoking is permitted.

FADETTES AND 'PEACHES' SHARE HONORS

Famous Orchestra Returns to Keith's and Gets Big Reception.

This is certainly Old Home Week at Keith's Theatre. Last night a large audience greeted Boston's own Fadette's Orchestra. They played a programme of light music and it seemed to hit just the right spot. Caroline A.-Nichols was conductor and a massive basket of flowers, inscribed "Welcome Home," was passed over the footlights to her.

"Peaches," a comedietta founded on the John Henry stories written by George V. Hobart, who writes under the name of "Dinkelspiel" for the BOSTON AMERICAN, is decidedly humorous. A story of the conventional race track order is told, but it is originality in the use of a few words and the slang of the brand that makes one laugh instead of figuratively turn up one's nose, as does most talk of its like on the stage. William Courtenay, the clever actor, plays the leading role.

Lee Orville is entertaining with his mimic and dialect acts; the Grigolati sextet, last in a musical specialty; Clifford and Burke have a good burnt cork turn, and Work and Ower have a gymnastic act which is very classy. The others are good but scarcely arts.

BONITA MAKES FRIENDS AT GLOBE

"Wine, Women and Song" was again received with much applause at the Globe Theatre last night, and promises to have a big run. This production is a combination of musical comedy and vaudeville. The opening number represents a gathering of stage celebrities, and the mimicking of these well known stars was cleverly done. Here Bonita proved herself a pleasing singer, and in her impersonation of the Gibson Girl was attractive. Nett Carr as David Warfield was equally successful. A sketch entitled "The End of the World," was afire with funny situations.

"HURDY GURDY GIRL" MUCH BENEFITED

"The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," still reaping the benefit of a new version, began the ninth week of its engagement at the Tremont last night. The comedy division has been improved since the new features came into the cast. Jacques Kruger remains a favorite, as do Harry Stone, Walter Lawrence and May Boley. Arthur Conrad has a new especial dance and a phonograph accompaniment which is a hit.

MAN AND BOY ARE DROWNED IN CHELSEA

Two are dead and four men and a woman were rescued during the storm of yesterday in the vicinity of Chelsea, yesterday. One man lost his life when a motor boat capsized, four men were saved by members of the receiving ship Wabash. A boy, Charles Blanchard, 10 years old, of N. 117 Broadway, Chelsea, who had been in swimming with Thomas Higley, who was about the same age, lost his life near the Eastern avenue anchorage, Chelsea. The drowned were: George Chase, thirty-five, of No. 142 Essex street, Chelsea, and Oliver Hughes, of No. 41 Walnut street, Chelsea, his wife Mary and son Albert, thirteen, of No. 41 Walnut street, Chelsea, and John Taylor of No. 42 Heath street, Everett.

The Unwritten Law Is Lax for Man, But Iron-Clad for Woman

By Beatrice Fairfax

FULL pardon has been granted must walk the straight path with to Mrs. Birdsong, a Western never a deviation, no matter how great woman, who had been convicted of murder and sentenced to five years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Her story is the old one of woman's frailty and man's perfidy.

The man was her family physician, and she fell in love with him and forgot honor and her duty toward her husband.

And the man himself so far forgot all manliness and honor as to boast of his friendship with her, to speak lightly of her in public places.

His remarks came to Mrs. Birdsong's ears and she shot him, killing him instantly.

Governor Vardaman of Mississippi, after listening carefully to a full statement of the case, has decided that the killing was justifiable and granted Mrs. Birdsong a full pardon.

No one human being has the right to take another human being's life, but surely if ever woman were justified in taking a man's life, this woman was.

This man had helped her and tempted her along her downward path and then was so little of a man as to make her name a byword in saloons.

Needed Sympathy

OF all the women in the world she was the one who most needed his protection and sympathy.

Undoubtedly she had sinned, but had not he been her partner in the sinning?

He had helped her toward her wrongdoing; the only possible reparation he could ever make her was by keeping silent and doing his utmost to save her from public disgrace.

The unwritten laws are so lax and lenient for man, but they are strong as life and death for woman. No allowance is made for her temptation; she the temptation.

Hundreds of women in Mississippi signed petitions urging Governor Vardaman to refuse Mrs. Birdsong's plea for pardon.

I wonder if every one of those hundreds had resisted temptation, because the only women who had a right to sign that petition were they who had known the power of temptation and resisted.

Judge Not!

SOMETIMES the woman who stands serene in her rectitude can be the hardest woman on earth. She judges every other woman from her own standpoint and is absolutely pitiless toward the woman who fails.

No woman can justify Mrs. Birdsong's manner of life nor the tragedy that resulted from it, but, surely, every woman can pity her from the bottom of her soul and realize that she be given a chance to begin a new life.

Poor woman! She has drunk her cup of bitterness to the dregs; her punishment has been full and complete; how can any sister woman put out a hand to push her further down?

To the girls who read this article, I want to say once more, "Be good."

Goodness and purity are the most important things in life, and they are the things that you must never for one moment forget.

Temptations may come, they do so many women, but be strong to resist.

For the man in the case, the man who was cad and coward enough to tempt and then to boast, I have no sympathy.

But for the woman, the frail, erring woman who forfeited all that woman holds most dear, I have nothing but pity, infinite and sincere.

Expert Tells What to Do to Get Rid of Woman's Worst Bugaboo

HOW TO CURE A DOUBLE CHIN

The Double Chin Means Age in Most Cases

THE woman with the double chin should pause, look at herself in the glass, and bid farewell to every claim to good looks—at least so long as the double chin remains.

The double chin means age, it means stolidity, it means shapelessness, and it means almost everything else that is unattractive from a standpoint of pure beauty. The woman with the double chin may be good, but she is not beautiful.

But every unfortunate woman who has one may with patience and exercise make it disappear.

Her first step is to look after her diet; her second is exercise; her third is massage, but this is only another kind of exercise; and her last step is a correction of wrong habits and mannerisms.

While you are dieting, be sure to use a skin food upon your face, or your cheeks will grow flabby.

A perfect chin must show that lovely oval line of beauty which one cannot help admiring wherever one sees it. There should be no squareness, no pointedness, nothing but the soft, delicate curve. This is the state which every woman should hope to attain, and which she can attain if she will have patience.

The first of the chin exercises—if one is really fat—consists in lifting the chin as high as possible. Lift it and lower it, lift and lower, and keep on doing this for five minutes. Then let your eyelids fall, raise or you may develop a stiff neck. But exercise slowly and regularly, and at the end of five minutes stop.

At night take the other chin exercise, which is from side to side. Lean the head over as far as you can, first to one side and then to the other. Let the head until the ear almost rests upon the shoulder. Do this slowly for five whole minutes.

The beneficial results of this form of treatment will soon be apparent. The chin will grow softer and the flesh will begin to disappear—to be succeeded by hard flesh, of the sort that comes to stay, and which is becoming and pretty.

THE PERFECT CHIN, SHOWING OVAL LINE OF BEAUTY

Carrying the Head High Is One Remedy

Massage comes next in the development of a pretty chin. This is actually another form of exercise. It must be carried on in a certain way or it will lead from bad to worse. It must be the sort of massage which reduces, not the sort that develops.

Massage to reduce must be swift and hard. Take your right hand and spread it out before you, rub a very little bit of skin food into it, then slap your chin with the open palm, and continue slapping while you count ten. Change hands, and slap the other side of your chin, still counting.

The second of the massage exercises consists of the tapping treatment. Take your finger tips and slightly anoint them with skin food, and then tap your jaws. Tap them at the side, using all your force, and keep on tapping while you count five. This is to reduce the squareness, which is so disagreeable, and which marks the chin as being too material and commonplace.

A great mistake is often made in this matter of massage. It is done too lightly, and the result is only to build up and deaden. You must tap with enough force to redden the skin, though you need not make it sore. Tap, tap, tap, and slap, slap, slap.

Pinching the chin and throat is something particularly of the skin is dull and yellow, as it generally is in the elderly matron. You need not pinch hard enough to mutilate the skin, but pinch up in big, gentle pinches, and press it until the skin is stimulated. The electric battery is very good for the same purpose. If you have one you can turn on the current and roll the skin with the tiny little electric roller.

Upon the toilet stand of the woman who wants a pretty chin there should be a jar of skin food and a pot of astringent cream. And in her scrap book there should be the subjoined dietary, for without all these she cannot hope to accomplish much in the beauty's paths. But with these and a little patience she will certainly arrive at her goal.

The first of the chin exercises consists in lifting the chin as high as possible. Lift it and lower it for five minutes. The other exercise is from side to side. Bend the head over until the ear almost rests upon the shoulder. Do this also for five minutes. Pinching the chin and throat is sometimes good, particularly if the skin is dull and yellow. Take your finger tips and slightly anoint them with skin food, then tap your jaws with all your force while you count five.

The Housefly as a Cause of Disease

From the Medical Bulletin.

NOW that the season for the housefly is rapidly coming on, it might be well to sound a note of warning in regard to the part played by the common housefly in the propagation of zymotic diarrhoea and typhoid fever. There is no other agency so great in transmitting these diseases as is this small animal. Flies settle on all kinds of filthy matter. Their hairy feet are particularly adapted for picking up germs and thus conveying them to the food in the kitchen or on the table. They often come directly from filthy matter which is loaded with the disease germs and settle on the fly was drowned.

sugar or drown in the coffee or in the milk. What better culture would you wish to grow most of the pathogenic germs than milk? How can we obviate this possible source of infection?

By enlightening the public of the dangerous possibility, encouraging every one in the community to practise cleanliness about the houses and stables and to dispose of domestic refuse by burning, so as to prevent putrescence near the houses, this will be done the breeding places of the flies would be reduced and a corresponding decrease in the death rate of "Summer" diarrhoea would follow.

As physicians, it is our duty to instruct the mother not to employ milk in which a

QUINCE JELLY

PEEL, cut up and core some fine ripe quinces; put them in sufficient cold water—to cover them and stew gently until soft—but not red. Strain the juice without pressing; weigh and to every pound of juice allow one pound of sugar; boil the juice twenty minutes, add the sugar and boil again until it jellies (about one-fourth of an hour; stir often to prevent the juice from burning). Strain through thin cloth into glass and jelly glasses and when cold cover it.

GREEN TOMATO PICKLES

ONE peck green tomatoes, one dozen large white onions, sliced; remove the pith into rings; one ounce whole pepper, one ounce white mustard seed, one ounce cloves, one ounce allspice. Put a layer of tomatoes and onion, then a good handful of salt, etc., till all are in a stone jar; then put a plate on top and weight down over night; in morning squeeze with hand and put to boil in kettle, putting in layer with spice and onion; heat boiling vinegar and boil twenty minutes. Put in stone jars to keep.

EVA LARIVIERE.
No. 75 School street, Hudson.

POTTED PEARS

TAKE ripe pears, wipe them carefully, place a layer, stem upwards, in a stone jar, sprinkle over sugar, then set in another layer of pears, more sugar, and so on until the jar is filled. To every gallon put in a pint and a half of water. Cover closely and set in a slow oven two hours. It is a nice dish for the tea table, with or without cream.

GRAPE CATSUP.

Five pounds of grapes, mashed, stewed and rubbed through a strainer. Then add one pint of vinegar, three pounds of sugar, one tablespoon of ground allspice, one tablespoon each of ground cloves, cinnamon and black pepper and half a teaspoon of salt. Boil all together until thick.

TO SEAL BOTTLES WITH WAX.

Melt eight ounces each of beeswax and rosin in a tin pail. Stir until well mixed, keeping it where it will not get too hot. Dip the corks in firmly, then invert the top of bottle in the wax, but hold.

"YOU see, it's a little awkward, isn't it," he declared. "Lord Arramoore is very eccentric, and especially so upon this point. He will not see strangers. Write him a line or two and let me take it to him."

She considered for a moment.

"Very well. Give me a piece of paper and an envelope."

She wrote a single line only. Brooks took it back into the great lumer hall, where Lord Arramoore had started another game of billiards with Lady Carouin.

"Miss Scott assured me that her business with you is private," he announced.

She has written this note."

Lord Arramoore laid his cue deliberately aside and broke the seal. It was evident that the contents of the note consisted of few words only, yet even so they perused them he muered a little closer to the light and peered them slowly. Then he laid a little sigh he folded the note in the smallest possible compass and thrust it into his waistcoat pocket.

"Lady Yoing friend, my dear Brooks," he said, taking up his cue, "does me the honor to solicite our assistance. Shall we? Will you inform her that I have no knowledge of the person to whom she alludes, and suggest—as delicately as you choose—that as she is mistaken my interview is unnecessary. It is, I believe, my turn, Catherine."

"If you decline, then, to see her?" Brooks said.

Lord Arramoore turned upon him with a rare irritation.

"Have I not made myself clear, Brooks?" he said. "If I were to keep open house to all the young women who choose to claim acquaintance with me I should scarcely have a moment to call my own, or a house fit to ask my friends to visit. He so good as to make my answer sufficiently explicit."

"It is unnecessary, Lord Arramoore. I have come to ask you for it yourself."

Determination

They all turned round. Mary Scott was coming slowly toward them across the thick rugs, her white face perfectly colorless. Her face was very pale, and her large eyes were full of nervous apprehension. But about her whole figure there was a rigid lines which spoke of determination.

Sybil leaned forward from her chair, and Lady Carouin watched her approach with lifted eyebrows and a stare of well-bred and languid insolence.

Lord Arramoore laid down his cue and rose at once to meet her.

"You are Lord Arramoore," she said, looking at him fixedly. "Will you please answer the question—in my note?"

He bowed a little coldly, but he made no remark as to her intrusion.

"I have already," he said, "given my answer to Mr. Brooks. The name which you mention is altogether unknown to me, nor have I ever visited the place you speak of. You have apparently been misled by a chance likeness."

"It is a very wonderful one," she said slowly, keeping her eyes fixed upon him.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I regret," he said, "that you should have had your journey for nothing. I can, I presume, be of no further use to you?"

"I do not regret my journey here," she answered. "I could not rest until I had seen you closely, face to face, and asked you that question. You deny, then, that you were ever called Philip Ferringhaw?"

"Most assuredly," he answered curtly. "That is very strange," she said.

"Strange?"

Accusations!

"Yes. It is very strange, because I am perfectly certain that you are."

He took up his cue and commenced chalking it in a leisurely manner.

"My dear young lady," he said, "you are, I understand, a friend of Mr. Brooks, and are, therefore, entitled to some amount of consideration from me. But I must respectfully remind you that your presence here is, to put it mildly, unsought, and that I do not find it pleasant to be called a liar under my own roof and before my friends."

"Pleasant!" she eyed him scornfully; "one did my father find it pleasant to be ruined and murdered by you, a debauched gambler, a common swindler!"

Lord Arramoore, unruffled, permitted himself to smile.

"Dear me," he said, "this is getting positively melodramatic. Brooks, for her own sake, will you beg of you to induce the young woman to leave us. In her calmer moments she will, I am sure, regret all these unwarranted statements to a perfect stranger."

Brooks was numbed—for the moment speechless. Sybil had been to her feet as though with the intention of leaving the room. But Lord Arramoore interposed. If he were acting it was marvellously good.

"I beg," he said, "that you will note of you doesn't me. These accusations of A Miss Scott, I believe—are unmerited. A murderer, a swindler and a rogue are hard names, young lady. May I ask you if a string of invectives is exhausted, or is there any further abuse which you feel inclined to heap upon me?"

The girl never flinched.

"I have called you nothing," she said, "which you do not deserve. Do you still deny that you were in Canada—in Montreal and Quebec—"

"Most assuredly I do deny it," he answered.

Brooks started and turned suddenly toward Lord Arramoore as though doubtful whether he had heard rightly. This was a year before his father's death. The girl was unmoved.

"I see that I should come here with proofs," she exclaimed. "Well, they are easy enough to collect. You shall have them. But before I go, Lord Arramoore, let me ask you if you know who I am?"

"I understand," Lord Arramoore answered, "that you are the daughter or the niece of a highly respectable tradesman in Mediterster, who is client of our young friend here, Mr. Brooks. Let me tell you, young lady, that but for that fact I should not—tolerate your presence here."

"Incredible"

"I am Mr. Bollsom's niece," the girl answered, "but I am the daughter of Marian Scott Carino!"

It seemed to Brooks that a smothered exclamation of some sort broke from Lord Arramoore's tightly-compressed lips, but his face was so completely in the shadow that its expression was lost. But he himself now revealed it, for touching a knob in the wall a shower of electric lamps suddenly glowed around the room.

He leaned forward and looked intently into the face of the girl who had become his accuser. She met the gaze coldly, almost fiercely, the pallor of her cheeks relieved by a single spot of burning color, her eyes full of purpose.

"It is incredible," he said, softly, "but it is true. You are the mystery that fills with a pigtail who used always to be playing games with the boys when you ought to have been at school. Come, I am glad to see you. Why do you come to me like a Cassandra of the Family Herald? Your father was my companion for a while, but we were never intimate. I certainly neither robbed nor murdered him."

"You did both," she answered, fiercely. "You were his evil genius from the first. It was through you he took to drink; through you he became a gambler. You encouraged him to play for stakes larger than he could afford. You won money from him which you knew was not his to lose. He came to you for help. You laughed at him. That night he shot himself."

It was," Lord Arramoore remarked, "a very foolish thing to do."

"Who or what you were before you came to Montreal I do not know, she continued, "but I am sure, sure, sure, that you had upon every one connected with you. I was a child in those days, but I remember how you were hated. You broke the heart of Marian Langley, an honest man whom you called your friend, and you left his wife in misery and a common lodging house. There was never a man or woman who followed you kindness that did not live to regret it. You may be the Marquis of Arramoore now, but you have left a life behind the memory of which should be a curse to you, sir!"

"Have you finished, young lady?" he asked, coldly.

"Yes, I have finished," she answered. "I only deserve that for the next time you meet it may be in the Police Court. The police of Montreal are still looking for Philip Ferringshaw, and they will find in you a very ready witness."

"Upon my word, this is a most unpleasant scene," Lord Arramoore said. "Brooks, do see her off the premises before she changes her mind and creates a scene. You have, I hope, been entertained, ladies," he added, turning to Sybil and Lady Carouin.

"Terribly in Earnest"

He eyed them carelessly enough to all appearance, yet with an inward scrutiny was quickly seconded to find what it feared, he turned to Brooks, but he and Mary Scott had left the room together.

"The" girl—was terrible in earnest," Lady Carouin said, with a storied eyes. "Were you not—a little cruel to her. Arranmore? Not that I believe these harrid things, of course. But she did. She was honest."

Avoid Getting Run Down

By Florence Sinclair, Lecturer to the National Health Society.

THERE are two "Run Down" seasons, late Summer and early Spring. For the condition of "run downness" experienced at these times some of us have only ourselves and our own carelessness to thank. With others the condition arises through circumstances beyond control.

Let us take them in order.

If you gallop and rush through the season, if you will be "in the swim," no matter at what expenditure of nerve capital and vital energy, it all depends on the amount of such capital that you possess whether you arrive at the end a wreck or not.

If your capital of physical strength is enormous and you are in the first flush of youth, well then, you may, probably, manage through the new "small hours" night after night for several weeks on end, and go through a multitude of engagements during the day as well, and be nothing much the worse for it in the long run.

Youth has a "requiring force" at command which quickly replenishes the capital when it is expended. But even youth sometimes becomes bankrupt in the matter of health if it is too recklessly encouraged to quick and not giving time enough as it were, for its surplus supplies to be stored.

Want of sufficient rest is the chiefest of all causes of "the run down" feeling in Summer, and, allow me to impress this fact very urgently upon you, the source of being "run down"—with its dreadful feeling of lassitude and exhaustion is one that you should never attempt to fight in the manner I suspect.

The feelings you experience are "Nature's warnings," and it is never safe, in fact it is highly dangerous, to neglect the physical warnings sent by Dame Nature.

Many a long, tiresome illness, many a really serious illness, sometimes even a fatal one, has been brought on by not giving in to Nature's admonition that she through has fallen below par, and that rest and nourishment are needed to bring it again up to the proper standard.

The feeling that work, or exercise of any kind, can only be accomplished with painful effort is a sure sign that something is out of gear in our physical mechanism.

To persist in fighting against this feeling and continuing exertion in the face of it is like working a machine that stands in need of oiling. The working is laborious to the worker and disastrous to the well-being of the machine.

Want of brain rest affects the body perhaps even more seriously than want of muscle rest.

You may possess a carriage or a motor car; you may walk but little and never have any tiring bodily work to do, but if you are a fanatic in the matter of, say, bridge, and devote half your waking hours to it, and clock your necessary amount of sleep so that you may gratify your passion for the game, why then you will become "run down" as surely as if you were a sweated needlewoman.

Hints on Health and Beauty

KEEP HAIR LIGHT

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Please tell me of something that will make the hair grow, but will not darkken it. I am 17 years old, and I have been using camomile tea, but it changes the color.—W. E. S.

VASELINE rubbed into the roots of the hair, a few drops every night, is about the best thing to make the hair grow, but it will, like all other, make the hair look slightly darker; but if you use suds of borax in the water with which you shampoo it, and put a teaspoonful of lemon juice into the last rinse water, the color will not be changed unless it be to give it a more golden tint, which cannot be objectionable.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

THE interior of Boston's big stores will be found as attractive as the exterior of the big city to the woman shopper in search of midsummer bargains. Here are some of the best of the counter decorations:

ALEXANDER CO. have an especially good corset bargain. They are offering for $1 their J. R. batiste corsets in broken sizes, all long hip, with front and side hose supporters, which they sell regularly from $1.50 to $2 a pair.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple Store offers to-morrow 150 pairs of beautiful quality lingerie gowns in new styles, also about 200 pairs of allover black imported lace hose of extra fine mesh at 29 cents a pair. Not more than three pairs will be sold to a customer, and no mail orders will be received.

NOYES BROS. will sell to-morrow 500 yards of fine sheep, cross-bar, mercerized linen handkerchiefs at just one-half price—two for 25 cents. They have always sold for 25 cents each.

FILENE'S will have to-morrow regular $3 tailored waists, made of pure cross-bar muslin, with laundered collar, for $1.75.

WOLF'S, "My Clothier," will sell at $1.98 girl's blue chambray dresses, worth $2.45. They are made in Gibson effect, with vesting, collar, cuffs and belt of white and dark plaited skirt and come in all sizes for girls from six to twelve years of age.

TIMOTHY SMITH CO. will sell "C. H." corsets, made from a fine quality batiste cloth, long, short and medium lengths; straight front and nicely boned. These corsets are the $1 and $1.50 models, but because they are subject to manufacturer's slight imperfections will be sold for 69 cents.

HENRY SIEGEL CO. have reduced for to-morrow a lot of their $1.29 French style corset covers to 89 cents. These are of fine nainsook, fronts made in panel effect of all-over embroidery and clusters of small tucks, with neck and arm sizes finished with dainty ribbon beading.

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. will sell at 11 cents imported white mercerized madras. It is in one pattern only and is worth 19 cents.

R. H. WHITE CO. have a small lot of dainty white ten aprons in many different patterns, Gibson, square, round and ruffled, made of fine lawn and fancy imported dotted materials, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion, and up neatly in a box. They are of different lengths and sizes. Next week to the end will be sold Wednesday for $1.50, $2, $3 and $4.50.

BUTLER'S will have a good bargain in "Carlton" bags, the popular style wrist bags, in leather, imitation lizard skin—only 100 in the lot. These bags are what you would ordinarily pay 98 cents to bought generally for 49 cents each.

The skirt is extra full plaited, 17 gore, and is lined throughout with percaline.

GILCHRIST'S will offer a special bargain in a 24-inch keratol covered suit case. These are well lined, have leather covers, two straps, brass catches and lock. Price for to-morrow will be $1.98.

A. SHUMAN CO. will put on sale a lot of beautifully embroidered white linen belts, with pretty buckles, the regular $3.50 kind, for $1.95; also a lot of $2 and $2.50 white linen belts with fancy pearl and metal buckles, for $1.35.

Oily Skin.

This condition of the skin is disagreeable because expression and as the Woodbury Treatment readily restores a perfect complexion, none should continue with this affliction. Call or writ Dept. K. for information free.

30 LITTLE GIRL VICTIMS OF "RIPPER"

Berlin Mothers in Panic and 18 Arrests Have Been Made.

BIG REWARD IS OFFERED

BERLIN, July 30.—This city is in a ferment of excitement to-day as a result of the latest Jack-the-Ripper horror. Thirty little girls have been murdered in the same atrocious manner within the last few months. In each case the mysterious assailant escaped.

The latest victim of the ripper was attacked in the street in the same quarter of the town where five little ones were slashed last Friday. Fortunately the human fiend was surprised with the little girl in his grasp. He dropped her and fled before he could be arrested. The appearance of the assailant tallies with that of the perpetrator of the previous ripper crimes.

As a result of the attack upon five girls on Friday, three are dead.

Eighteen arrests have been made, but without locating the ripper. All but two of the suspects have been released, and these are only held as suspicious persons.

On Friday last the ripper worked with particular ferocity. Five little ones were attacked. Three are dead, and the others are in a terrible condition.

Rumors soon spread throughout that vicinity which magnified the number of victims, and the inhabitants of the neighborhood became intensely excited.

In the meantime two victims, who still lived, were transported to a hospital.

The officials acted quickly in an endeavor to locate the murderer and offered a reward of $1,000 for his capture. Shortly after the crimes were committed a slip of paper with a death head sketched on it was found on a public seat near the scene. On it was scribbled in a rambling hand:

"Away! Away! In five minutes there will be a corpse. There is a child murdered in the neighborhood. Deliver this note to the police. I have killed children in Helsdorf, Potsdamer and Hennemsdorfer streets.

"The note was attached to the seat by means of a sharp single scissors blade, and it is assumed that the crimes were executed with the other half of the instrument.

All the available police and detectives are working to arrest the neighborhood. Several men have reported that their children had seen a pale and haggard man, about twenty-seven years old, well dressed and wearing a cap, offering candy and fruit to little girls, whom he asked to accompany him.

GROUT BROS. REOPEN SHOP

ORANGE, Mass., July 30.—The Grout Brothers have resumed operations in their automobile factory, after having been shut down since July 8, when their father, Wilbur L. Grout of Greenfield, placed a $200,000 attachment on the plant. E. S. Holton of Orange and David I. Walsh of Fitchburg have been appointed as permanent joint receivers.

EVELYN THAW BRANDS STAGE STORY A LIE

Says She Will Remain in New York, Where She Will Be Near Her Husband.

SHE SEES PRISONER DAILY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Indignant because of the printed report that she intended to return to the stage, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to-day announced through the Hearst News Service that the report was entirely unfounded. "It is a deliberate and unqualified falsehood to say that I am going on the stage," said Mrs. Thaw at her home, on Park avenue.

"I intend to remain here in the city, where I can readily visit my husband. All these stories are published with some motive, and until this I have remained silent, even in the face of the most foolish reports. But I feel that a great injustice is being done in circulating the stories that I intend to return to the footlights. All I can say is that it is a falsehood."

Awaiting the second trial of her husband, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has been living in practical retirement in a handsome home in the fashionable section.

Each day she visits her husband in the tombs, going to and from the city prison in an automobile. The remainder of the time Mrs. Thaw spends in shopping and consulting with lawyers who are engaged in planning the defence of the second trial.

BLAME CITY FOR FIRE LOSS

NEW YORK, July 30.—Searching investigations are to be begun before the end of the week into Sunday's and Monday's big fires in the Metropolitan district, as a result of which the property loss runs well up into the millions and the loss of at least nineteen lives and the injury of two score persons.

While the police are endeavoring to find the authors of the blaze, which was unquestionably incendiary, the city administration will endeavor to fix responsibility upon those in the Tenement House Department who pronounced the building safe.

BROCKTON WORKMEN UNEARTH SKELETON

BROCKTON, July 30.—While excavating a cellar on Mulberry street workmen have uncovered the skeleton of a man about two feet under the surface of the earth. Near this spot about twelve years ago a skeleton was uncovered in the same manner.

MONOPOLY IN 'HOME MARKET,' CRIES HAMLIN

Declares Republican Party Delays Tariff Revision to Protect Trusts.

ROB AMERICAN CONSUMERS

That the Republican party, by its determination to postpone the question of tariff revision, is going to make it possible for trusts to plunder the American people for another term of years is the opinion of the Hon. Charles S. Hamlin of Boston and Bozzard's Bay.

"The people are weary of the startling increase in the cost of living," declared Mr. Hamlin to-day, and they now fully realize that the Republican cry of 'Home market' means limitless trusts and high prices.

Mr. Hamlin has made an investigation into the comparative prices of American products when sold in this country and abroad, and his figures show that the American consumer is being robbed.

Here are some of the amazing things he discovered.

A barrel churn, which the manufacturer sold in Massachusetts for $8.50, is sold to the Canadian farmer for $4.

A double wheel hoe, which costs the Massachusetts farmer $9.50, is sold to the Canadian farmer for $8.75.

A double board mould plow, made in Massachusetts, costs the Massachusetts farmer $8.10, but costs the Canadian farmer only $6.30.

"The protected farmer," says Mr. Hamlin, "has the advantage of being allowed to pay increased prices for everything he buys."

ACCUSED OF ROBBING MAN IN A SALOON

Caught by the man who charges that he has robbed of a pocketbook containing $7, a youth, who gave the name of Frank Hines of Harrisburg, Pa., was placed under arrest on Causeway street to-day on the charge of larceny.

His captor, John Coan of Walden street, Concord, declared that he was robbed in a saloon.

How many people among the thousands who daily pass our store realize that it is the site of one of the noted buildings of revolutionary times?

We refer to the Old Brattle Street Church, which stood on the Brattle Square corner of the land we now occupy.

It was built in 1669 and was used in 1776 as barracks for the 29th Regt. of British Troops, under Gen. Gage.

We have prepared a large souvenir postcard giving a photographic reproduction of the church and some historical data concerning it.

It will be delivered free to any adult calling for it at our bundle counter on the street floor.

ASK CONGRESS TO PROVIDE A TESTING SHIP

Roosevelt Favors Recommendation Resulting from Georgia Accident Probe.

TO INVESTIGATE AGAIN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 30.—With the approval by President Roosevelt of the report of the accident on the battleship Georgia by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry it became known that the Government has taken steps to avoid all such accidents in the future. That something radical is wrong is evident to many experts who have made inquiry into the Georgia and similar accidents on other ships, and steps will be taken immediately to discover and remedy the defect.

Congress will, it is said, be asked to provide a ship—a sea-going ship, having a turret—which will be set apart for trying experiments and handling explosives, as well as other novel notions of seeming value.

The report made to President Roosevelt by Newberry was approved by the President, but a supplemental report will be made by a commission of experts to be appointed in a few days at Washington. The experts will strive to discover means of preventing accidents in the future, and the report, altogether technical, will be placed before Congress for its information.

It is regarded as certain that at the same time the report is made Congress will be asked to set aside a ship for experiments.

Mrs. Oldfogey—"I don't believe in new-fangled ideas. Old-fashioned ways are best. No Fels-Naptha soap for me!"

Anty Drudge—"Some day you will wake up. You'll grow tired of the old-fashioned way of washing with its long hours, washtub slavery and backache. Then you'll try the Fels-Naptha way. I know you will, because I've met just such prejudiced women before, and they always join the Fels-Naptha army some day."

It is a natural instinct to keep on thinking that one's own way is best. Which probably explains why there are still women enslaved by the old, hot, hard kind of washday.

But reason overcomes instinct. That is part of reason's business. And there are a million women who have gone over from the big range-fire, the overheated house, the steaming suds and smell, the scalded clothes and the hard-rubbing to—the Fels-Naptha cool, easy washday.

How is it with you? You have the testimony of the million. Better still, you have the chance any day, any hour, to test our claims for yourself.

A cake of Fels-Naptha, water just as it comes from the spigot or pump, and the directions printed on the red and green wrapper—and you are ready to wash or clean anything.

Will you make the trial?

A great pitchers' duel is expected at the Huntington avenue grounds this afternoon, as Jesse Tannehill, the crack southpaw flinger, is slated to twirl for the locals, and Walter Clarkson, late of the Highlanders, for the visiting Naps.

Although earlier in the season "Tanny" did not show good form, just at present he is twirling as fine an article of ball as ever in his career, and he promises to make it interesting for the crippled Indians.

Clarkson, one-time star Harvard twirler, but suspended from the college nine in his last season with the team for signing a contract to play with the Highlanders at the finish of his university career, did not shine under the guidance of Clark Griffith, but since joining the Clevelands he has been doing surprisingly well. He beat Glaze of the Pilgrims when the two recently clashed in Cleveland.

Clarkson Hopes to Win Again.

Clarkson has hopes of beating the locals again to-day. He is unusually anxious to turn the trick here, because of his wide circle of friends in this city; and a victory would indeed make it feel like old home week for him.

But to beat Jesse Tannehill, the way he is pitching at present, Clarkson will have to travel some, especially as just now the Pilgrims are putting up the finest kind of ball in years. The Pilgrims are going along smoothly, now that they don't expect to have the slightest trouble in winning the majority of games in the present series from Lajoie the Great's team.

Boston Get Opener, 4 to 2.

The Bostons easily captured the opening game, 4 to 2, lost it took a rally in the eighth inning to accomplish the trick. The locals took the lead in the first, because Harry Hinchman, the new infielder procured from Binghamton of the New York State League, stumbled over a grounder, and Unglaub's triple followed, scoring a run.

In the eighth inning, with two men on bases and two downs, Harry Bemis, the Marlboro boy and crack catcher of the visitors, made his fourth hit of the day, scoring two runs and giving the visitors the lead.

Boston scored three runs, and on good hitting, in their half, and made victory sure.

George Winter was in good form, and had the Naps puzzled somewhat except in the inning they scored. Hebbard, the New Orleans wonder, relieved for the Naps, but Boston found him rather easy.

TWO CRACK PLAYERS ON CLEVELANDS

These two players starred for Cleveland in the opening game of the series with the Pilgrims yesterday. Besides catching a good game, Bemis got four singles out of four times up. The total of hits for the visitors was only nine. Harry Hinchman played his first game at second base for the Clevelands yesterday, having been secured from Binghamton of the New York State League. He put up a grand game in the field, and got a double. He looks like a good man to fill in until Lajoie and Bradley get back in the infield.

Special to the Boston American.

PITTSBURG, July 30.—Afraid that if they don't get on to their jobs and trim the Doves in the remaining games of the series, they will again have to relinquish their hold on second place to the Giants, the Pirates will go into to-day's contest determined to crush the Hub Hopefuls.

It was a bitter pill for the "Pies" to be beaten in the first game of the series by such a lowly aggregation as the Doves, especially after the latter had trimmed the Cubs, champions of the league, on the preceding day, but the Barney Dreyfus crew had to swallow it.

Defeat at the hands of the Doves is more humiliating to the Pirates than anything that can befall them. The Boston nine is mostly composed of Pittsburg castoffs, and it is certainly rubbing it in to have these players outplay the home team on its own grounds.

Pirates Feel Hurt.

Manager Fred Clarke will exercise his every faculty to triumph over the visitors to-day, and he has got his men worked up to such a feeling of injury and desire to score revenge that there is no telling what they may do to the Doves to-day.

When the Pirates were recently in the Hub the Bostons lost three straight games by close margins, and only won the fourth in the eighth inning, when it looked like sure defeat for them. Therefore, they want to get back at the Pirates, and when the teams clash this afternoon, there will be two clubs trying the fiercest kind of ball, and it looks like a toss-up who'll win out.

Dorner and Willis May Pitch.

Gus Dorner, a Red discard, is scheduled to pitch for the Beaneaters to-day, while Vic Willis, a former Boston twirler, is slated to pitch for the home talent. With these two men in their proper stride, the contest should certainly be interesting, and the chances are that hits will be few and far between.

The opening game here went to the Bostons 8 to 3. Pirate castoffs were instrumental in gaining the victory for the Hub team. Lindaman pitched for the visitors, and he certainly had the locals chagrined.

Dugglehy, the ex-Quaker, was on the pitching list for the first time for the locals, and was knocked out of the box in the seventh inning. Sam Leever replaced him.

FAIRLY GOOD ENTRY LIST FOR AUTO PARADE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The automobile parade and gymkhana events to be held on Thursday promise to be most interesting. The majority of the local dealers will enter one or more cars in the parade, the entries for which are coming in fairly well. Secretary Fortescue of the Bay State Automobile Association has taken the matter in hand with his old time vigor and indications are that both will be well worth the witnessing. Prizes will be given for the following classes: The best appointed touring car; the best appointed runabout; the best appointed car driven by a lady, with lady passengers; the best decorated car; the most grotesque car.

W. E. Metzger of the Cadillac Automobile Company has been the guest of Abram T. Fuller for the past two or three days. Mr. Metzger spent Sunday on the North Shore, and pronounces it one of the most beautiful and restful spots he has ever visited.

Beginning August 1, Major J. S. Keenan will assume his duties as superintendent of the new White garage, now nearly completed, Newbury street. Major Keenan is no stranger to the automobile field, and begins his career with the White Company equipped with thorough and practical experience in motor storage.

Mr. Keenan was born in Roxbury, and attended the public schools till his association with a prominent electrical establishment, remaining with them nearly twenty-one years.

At the outbreak of the Spanish American war he was assigned to duty at Forts Warren and Pickering; and soon after the opening of the Massachusetts Automobile Club was offered the position of superintendent.

It is expected that the garage will be fully in readiness by September 1, and the host of friends and automobile owners have assured him a full house. The past week Manager Hathaway has been kept busy receiving congratulations on having secured the services of so capable and competent a garage superintendent.

R. L. Taylor, of Springfield, has invented an automobile tire which he claims is puncture proof, bullet proof and skid proof. The tire is made of steel instead of rubber. The only rubber there is on the tire is a piece tacked on the outer rim to deaden the noise when going over the pavement. Between the outer rim and the felly of the wheel is placed a set of sixteen steel springs which Mr. Taylor claims will make the tire run even more smoothly than the pneumatic tires. He says the cost is less and the tire will last longer.

The Taylor Tire Company has already been incorporated and the plant will probably be located here, although offers have been received from Albany, Buffalo and Oswego to open the industry in one of those cities.

30-MILE RACE BEHIND MOTORS AT REVERE

As an attraction for the Old Home Week celebration the Revere bike track management has arranged a star card of races for Saturday night.

The feature will be a thirty-mile motor paced race with Bud MacLean, Elmer Collins and Patsy Logan competing. Logan will be given a start of five miles against the more experienced riders and with this liberal handicap he is likely to spring a surprise.

Collins beat Jimmy Moran, last week, showing a remarkable racing form which led many of his friends to believe that he can take the measure of MacLean. To beat MacLean is Collins's ambition since the former recently won the diamond medal emblematic of the motor paced championship of America, and there will be the biggest kind of a demonstration for his Lynn followers at the track to urge him on.

Another event which will hold a lot of interest is the unlimited pursuit race between Joe Fogler of New York and Jimmy Moran. Both are speedy as sprinters and it will be a fight to the finish.

A motor-paced match race of ten miles between George Wiley of Syracuse and Dennis Connolly of Everett will help to kindle the enthusiasm.

TWIN COULDN'T LAND KNOCKOUT

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 30.—In the fifth round it looked pretty bad for Black Firsimmons, the colored boxer from Hartford, but he managed to stay through the sixth and final round of his bout here with Jack Twin Sullivan of Cambridge, Mass. Although "Sully" had the better of the fistic argument, he wasn't able to secure the knockout which he tried to land in every round.

EASTERN LEAGUE RESULTS.

At Providence—Baltimore 3; Providence, 1.
At Montreal—Montreal 0; Toronto 0; called in ninth; darkness.
At Buffalo—Buffalo 10; Rochester 1; first game; Buffalo 1; Rochester 0; second game.
At Jersey City—Newark-Jersey City (rain).

JOHNSON TO MEET BURKE

NEW YORK, July 30.—Sailor Burke and Jack Johnson in the office of the Evening Journal signed articles of agreement calling for them to battle six rounds during the first week of September. The men are to meet at catchweights which will give the big colored man about twenty-five pounds the best of it. The bout is to go to the club offering the best inducements. Bids for the battle are to be sent to the Sporting editor of the Evening Journal and will close August 12.

The only conditions to the match are that the men are to box under straight rules, protect themselves in the breakaway and at all times and that soft bandages can be used.

AUGUSTA QUITS MAINE LEAGUE

AUGUSTA, July 30.—Because they have been losing money all season, the Augusta Baseball Association has withdrawn from the Maine State League.

BASEBALL TOURNAMENT.

St. Anne's field day will be held at Combination Park on August 10, and the feature will be a baseball tournament for a purse of $25. All teams should send entries to William Cartwright, No. 200 Broadway, Somerville. Telephone 906-4, Somerville.

JACOT LANDS C. F. KING CUP

Although none was able to swim the distance from Charlestown bridge to Boston light yesterday, in the race for the C. F. King cup, owing to the cold water and the very strong running tide, Louis Jacot of Beachmont was awarded the trophy, after having swum eight miles of the distance. The officials stopped him, having anxiety for his life. Only two others were in the race at the time it was called off, after five hours and thirteen minutes of battling against the elements.

CROWDS AT PROVIDENCE OLD HOME MUNICIPAL DAY

FROM ALL PARTS OF WORLD THEY GATHER; MANY COMING TO BOSTON.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 30.—With fine weather and thousands of visitors in town, the observance of Municipal Day of the Old Home Week was held to-day. From daylight electric cars were coming into the city from all directions laden with passengers, and the first trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad were crowded before their capacity despite the fact that they had extra cars attached.

The hotel registers and those kept at various points of historical interest contain the names of people from all parts of the world, many of whom after visiting here won the best things Providence can furnish are going to Boston for the big time in the Old Home Week festivities there.

The State capitol was thrown open for inspection this morning and remained open for visitors all day. During the same hours visitors were welcomed at City Hall.

Rhode Island Clambakes.

The courthouse, manufacturing establishments and entertainments are being held in the Narragansett Bay resorts.

From 4 o'clock this afternoon until 7:30 o'clock this evening there are free recitals in the Public Library, Market and this evening there will be band concerts at Exchange place and in Roger Williams Park.

A baseball game between doctors and lawyers, which was scheduled for last night, has been postponed until Thursday because of the Providence-Baltimore league baseball game, which is taking place this afternoon on the Providence ball grounds.

Historical Place Marked.

One of the most interesting features of Historical Day, which was yesterday, was the dedication of a bullet and stone near Reclambean avenue, marking the camping ground of the Rhode Island during the Revolutionary War.

The programme, which began at 2:30 o'clock, consisted of historical addresses, prayer and music by Maguire's Band. The speeches were made by Governor Henry H. Munro, president of the Rhode Island Historical Society; John H. Farnsworth, former president of the Rhode Island Society of Sons of the American Revolution, and ex-Governor Charles Warren Lippitt.

It is expected that the largest number of visitors of the week will be in the city Friday, when the grand parade of the week parade takes place, Captain Albert H. Eccleston, chief marshal of the parade, has appointed the following aids to serve on his staff: Colonel Arthur W. Williams, chief of staff; aides, Robert E. Potter, Howard Brainard, Howard Thornton, Edwin O. Chase, S. H. Lawton, Frank A. Hill, John A. Gammons, Joseph Hazard, W. Bliss, Ernest L. Sprague, Ellery A. Peirce, Frank H. Brady, John C. Filler, Frank Childs, Hans Schneider and Albert W. Gardner.

The following division marshalls and chiefs of staffs are also announced: First division, Colonel H. D. Murray of the Uniformed Rank, K. of P., marshal; Colonel Irving Ray Hayford, chief of staff. Second division, James D. Reilly of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, marshal; Colonel Hall, chief of staff. Third division, William H. Draper, marshal; H. W. Hawkins, chief of staff. Fourth division, Howard W. Jencks, marshal; Henry A. Jones, chief of staff.

Trades Parade.

To serve as his aides during the trades parade on Thursday, Chief Marshal Arthur V. Woodward has appointed the following: Chief of staff, General Herbert S. Tanner; aides, Major Horace L. Manchester, Captain George L. Tingley, Captain Edward W. Howard W. Jencks, Major A. W. Calder, H. W. Brown, R. A. Bliss, Colonel Ira C. Bliss, Lieutenant Fred C. Richards, Lieutenant Colonel John A. O'Neill, Dr. F. M. Harrington, Major Richard Le Baron Bowen, Lieutenant Henry Lundquist, Lieutenant Walter I. Sweet and others to be announced later.

The Grand Army posts will all be represented in the Civic and Military parade as well as the Spanish American War Veterans and the Farragut Association of Naval Veterans.

Among the visitors from Greater Boston registered at the Old Home Week headquarters yesterday were Charles Cooper and Miss C. E. Cooper of Scituate and Charles O. Dwyer of Boston. It is estimated that over 15,000 persons attended the concert given in Exchange place last night by Fay's American Band.

The committee in charge of the veteran firemen's muster and parade for Thursday say that fifty companies will participate. All the secret orders have chosen their headquarters open to visiting members. Residents of the city have thrown open the lodge room of the Elks, where lunch is constantly served under the direction of a committee of members of the order.

MUNICIPAL DAY HOME PROGRAMME

THIS is Municipal Day at Providence, where Old Home Week is being observed. Here is the day's programme:

9 a. m. until 5 p. m.—State Capital, City Hall and Court House open for inspection. Guides will be furnished at the Court House.

Manufacturing establishments open for inspection.

Special clambakes and attractions at all shore resorts.

1 and 7:30 p. m.—Free recitals at Calvary Baptist Church.

8 p. m.—Band concert, Exchange place and Roger Williams Park.

FRAIL SCHOONER IN ELECTRIC STORM AT SEA

Caught in the severest electrical storm that even the oldest member of them had ever seen, the crew of the little fishing schooner Francis Whalen, which came into port to-day minus her top spars, had an experience yesterday afternoon which none are so repeat.

Sailing on their way to the home port, with a fish from Georges Banks, everything went well until off Highland light yesterday. Then the sky suddenly became overcast, a high wind arose and sheets of lightning began to play about the vessel.

Between intervals of the lightning it was so dark that it was impossible to see in the cabin or forecastle, and Captain Larry Norton and his twenty-one men expected every minute that the vessel would be struck by a bolt from the sky.

The lightning certainly struck both topmasts of the vessel and tangled the rigging badly, making it impossible to sail.

The storm ceased as suddenly as it had sprung up. After the crew had cleared away the broken spars and straightened out the rigging they worked their vessel into port.

HAYWOOD ACQUITTED

A Fair Trial and a Just Verdict Rebuke Two Kinds of Anarchists

Haywood has been acquitted. No other verdict was to be expected in view of the evidence. It would have been outrageous to suggest the possibility of condemning a man upon the testimony of so vile a creature as Orchard.

This Haywood case has been discussed in this newspaper from time to time as it has progressed.

On March 24, 1906, we said:

"Every citizen in the United States is interested in the case of Moyer and Haywood, now 'on trial' in the State of Idaho—a case fully dealt with in our news columns to-day.

"These two men are labor leaders of the highest standing, of recognized character and integrity.

"They have been practically kidnapped from the State of Colorado into Idaho, and they are to be tried for their lives on the sworn 'confession' of an alleged accomplice and a confessed murderer named Orchard.

"The accusation against the men grows out of the troubles between miners and mine owners that have disturbed Colorado and, to a lesser degree, Idaho, for some time past."

On April 9, 1907, we quoted editorially the opinion by Justice McKenna of the United States Supreme Court, who declared that the man HAD in fact been practically kidnapped. His exact words were: "In the case at bar the STATES (Idaho and Colorado), through their officers, are the offenders. They, by an illegal exertion of power, deprived the accused of a constitutional right." We said further in regard to the case on March 24, 1906:

"If by any chance the men are guilty—AND WE DO NOT FOR ONE MOMENT BELIEVE THAT THEY ARE—this newspaper will be first to announce the fact UPON PRESENTATION OF EVIDENCE, and to demand their punishment by hanging. For the man who would injure the cause of labor by cowardly murder should be put out of the world. He is the vilest, most dangerous criminal.

"On the other hand, these men shall not be railroaded to the gallows on the perjured testimony of any purchased liar and self-confessed murderer. If there is manhood in America to protest, these men, that gave their strength and their fighting courage to defend their fellow-workmen AND THE SACREDNESS OF THE AMERICAN BALLOT, shall not be hanged for a crime of which they are innocent, in order to OBLIGE COWARDLY CORPORATIONS that would suborn perjury and commit 'legal' murder in order to cut down the wages of ten thousand workers.

"Capital is powerful, and manhood has at times sunk pretty low in America. BUT WE HAVE NOT YET REACHED, let us hope, THE STAGE OF HANGING THE INNOCENT, to oblige enthroned capital."

The jury has now been heard from. It pronounces Haywood innocent, and he goes out free.

In writing this editorial we call the attention of two classes of unwise and "anarchistic" citizens to the fact that they have been foolish and unjust in their attitude toward this famous case. First among those lacking in respect for law was President Roosevelt, who denounced Haywood as "an undesirable citizen," practically condemning as guilty a man on trial for his life. And second in lack of respect for law were the reckless, thoughtless agitators that denounced in advance the judge and the jury in the case.

Mr. Roosevelt, who denounced Haywood as guilty, is rebuked by the decision of a jury of twelve men. And others, equally extreme and rash, who denounced the judge and the jury, are rebuked by the judge's charge, the jury's verdict, and by the general conduct of the trial, which thoroughly protected the rights of the State and of the individual accused.

Haywood has always borne a good reputation; he has led a good life as an honorable man, caring for his family, protecting the interests of the men that trusted him. He is acquitted. He is to be congratulated upon the verdict, and also to be congratulated are the workingmen whom he represented and of whom he is a type.

Such vile crimes as the murder of Steunenberg are inexcusably cowardly, worthy of only such a beast as Orchard's confession has proved him to be. Orchard has been discredited, as he was inevitably doomed to be. The President's unjustifiable attack upon Haywood has been properly rebuked.

The thoughtless, foolish and harmful attacks on the good faith of the court are shown to be ridiculous, uncalled for, almost criminal.

Justice has been done, the atmosphere is cleared, and the entire country is to be congratulated.

We learn from this verdict that the American workingman of the West has not sunk to treacherous murder in his battle with economic conditions.

And we learn that selfish interests have not the power—if they have the inclination—to use the courts or the gallows in opposing organizations of workmen.

Can We MAKE Others Love Us?

Ella Wheeler Wilcox's Answer

In another column of this newspaper you will find Mrs. Wilcox's profound article answering the question of one of our readers, "Can we compel others to love us?"

Mrs. Wilcox has written this article in response to the request of the editor. We regret to say, however, that she has written it philosophically rather than personally. Mrs. Wilcox's mind is essentially philosophical and poetic. She thinks metrically and philosophically, and it is very difficult to drag her down to the earth where the rest of us dwell.

When asked about "MAKING anybody love you," she thinks at once of Gotama, who fed himself to the tiger that she might have fresh milk for her young. And if you ask her how Jennie Smith can compel Annie Jones to love him, she asks James about his "aura," about the effect of the ultra-violet rays on his inner consciousness, etc.

This is clear to the marvellous mind of Mrs. Wilcox, but confusing to James and to Annie.

The learned among our readers will learn much from this article by Mrs. Wilcox, and they will enjoy it.

We are going now to ask her to write us another article, answering the question in a way that will be understood by "the lower plane of consciousness."

The question we ask her to answer is this:

"If James Smith, who works in the butcher shop, loves Annie Jones, and if Annie Jones doesn't notice James Smith, how can James compel Annie to notice him, and not only notice him but marry him, and love him ever afterward?"

That is what our readers want to know, as a rule. Dozens of them have not their eyes fixed on somebody who doesn't appreciate the delicate attention, and they want to know how they can compel affection.

Mrs. Wilcox knows, if she will tell. She has written of this thing in rhyme and in prose years ago, and knows all about it. We trust she will come down from the top of Mt. Everest to James's little butcher shop and have a heart-to-heart talk with him.

Is it POSSIBLE for him to make Annie love him, and, if it is possible, HOW can he do it?

Can We Make People Admire and Love Us?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

OUR power of awakening love and admiration in others depends mainly on our capacity for giving love and admiration.

A beautiful young woman who is merely physically beautiful, like a picture or a gem or an animal, may win love and admiration for a time without feeling anything but self love.

But her reign will be a short one.

The human being is so constituted that he will not continue to worship at an altar of ice.

Indifference and coldness may attract a man who loves the conquest of difficulties, but after the conquest is made he ceases to find coldness and indifference attractive qualities.

The people who receive the greatest and most lasting love and admiration in life are those who give most spontaneously of their own affections.

Unselfish Love

BUDDHA and Christ loved all humanity with an overwhelming and self-forgetting love and devotion.

However, His immediate circle maltreated Christ. He has been receiving for almost two thousand years the harvest of love which he planted while on earth.

Buddha is worshipped by millions of souls to-day, after almost three thousand years.

His father, who was a great ruler in India, and his friends and relatives felt heartbroken when the young prince was so impressed with the sufferings of humanity that he went away into the desert to meditate and find a way to help the world. And when he came back and told them that he had learned the whole secret of life and that it was to love all created things and do no evil, and return kindness for unkindness, and to treat every living thing as if it were our kin, they marvelled at his words.

But now from millions of hearts rises an incense of love at the mention of his name. Love bestowed upon the unworthy some time and some way comes back to the heart which sends it out with tenfold interest.

A Spontaneous Tribute

WE of lesser development can make people love and admire us when we reach that state of selfless wisdom which does not allow us to seek for love or admiration, and only permits us to receive it when given as a tribute to the qualities which arouse it, and not as a tribute to our individual selves.

Our most vindictive enemy will, in his secret soul, be forced into admiration of our worth if he sees us going serenely along life's way, doing what good we can and performing our duties with patient unostentation. As the natural result of such a course of conduct he will see us growing mentally, spiritually, and he will be forced into admiration in spite of himself.

If we are hated and despised for mean and despicable qualities we can only receive love and admiration by overcoming the despicable and unlovable habits we possess.

A deliberate course of action, planned out in cold blood, to win an enemy as a friend, just to prove that we can, or for personal motives, would bring no lasting result and would be laying a foundation for more enmity and less respect in the end, because it would not have the foundation of self-respect.

The best way to win our enemy to love and admiration is to forget all about him, save to commend him to the Great Source of Love and Wisdom, and to ask that light may be given him to see. Then go about your own business serenely. If it comes in your way to do him a favor or to save him from misfortune, bestow what help you can; otherwise leave him to the working out of his destiny while you work your own.

Harmony and Discord

SOMETIMES two very excellent individuals, each doing his duty as clearly as he sees it, are incompatible, and if closely associated they become antagonistic. This is because they are vibrating at different rates of speed.

Every vibration of light has its own particular tone and color, and if you are in the sharps, and a bright red, and your associate is in the flats, and deep yellow, there will be a clash of sounds and hues naturally.

The best way in such cases is to let sufficient space intervene, so the inharmony is not aggressive, until you both come into the universal vibration and color of spiritual perfection.

We are all on the way, and he who has most toleration for his fellows, and he who best minds his own affairs will suffer least because of his neighbor's lack of love and admiration.

Noted Experts Approve Municipal Ownership

In the following article Professor Frank Parsons comments on the final report of the Committee of Investigation of Public Ownership of the National Civic Federation, which was made public yesterday. This committee, composed of leading representatives of business interests, labor leaders, college professors and journalists, has just completed an exhaustive study of public utilities in the United States and England, and its report is almost unanimous endorsement of the municipal ownership principle.—Ed.

By Professor Frank Parsons

THE present investigation has greatly strengthened our impressions to the effect:

(1) That municipal ownership of public utilities, under proper safeguards, is advantageous industrially, politically and socially, and tends to the physical, mental and moral well-being of the citizen; and

(2) That the question of adopting municipal ownership in any given case is a question that must be decided by the municipality concerned, in the light of its own local circumstances and the probability of securing the conditions necessary to successful public management at the time and place under consideration.

We may add that all of the committee who went to England with a favorable attitude toward municipal ownership returned with a still more favorable impression of it, and some who were not favorable to municipal ownership have become so during this investigation.

Aside from the members directly interested in public service companies, only three fifteen who went abroad refrained from expressing their hearty approval of the principal public systems visited by the Commission, and one of the company officials was at times generously enthusiastic.

One of the committee, however, in his dissent from the majority report, has stated his belief that "the condition of the British people, individually and collectively, has not been improved by the municipalization of the industries we have investigated."

With all due respect to our dissenting colleague, we ask: Is it not strange that the British people do not know of this failure of municipal ownership to improve their condition? They think their condition has been greatly improved by municipalization of public utilities, and in consequence they keep on municipalizing just as if they were being benefited by it. They have lived right there in Great Britain under former company managements, and under the succeeding municipal managements, but they have not discovered this most important fact which our colleague was able to discover during our brief visit.

There are some, of course, in Great Britain who oppose municipal ownership. Some of them hold a theory that the Government should be only a policeman, and they are consistently opposed to public schools, parks, fire departments, water works, postoffice, et cetera. Some are Socialists of the kind who object to municipal operation of public utilities because they want a revolution, and desire to have things remain as bad as possible, in order that the people may be finally driven to revolution, and sweep away the whole of the existing industrial system at a stroke.

Some are men who are connected with existing companies, or held stock in the former companies displaced by public ownership. It is not easy for a man who holds stock in a public service company to see the benefits of municipal ownership, at least, in the field of service to which his company belongs.

We found some owners and managers of private lighting systems in Great Britain who did not believe in municipal operation of gas and electric light plants, but saw no objection to municipal operation of tramways, and we found some high officials of private tramways who saw no reason why municipalities should not operate lighting systems, but were firmly convinced that municipal operation of street railways was a great mistake.

It is much easier for the ordinary stockless man, who rides in a better class of car, and is glad to pay the company, or the employe who works fifty-four to sixty hours a week instead of seventy-seven, eighty-four or ninety-one under company control, and gets more pay besides, and a share in electing the council which manages the road—it is much easier for such people to realize the benefits of municipal ownership than for those who are directly or indirectly interested in public service corporations.

How to Pronounce Hisgen

(From the Springfield Republican.)

In place of Moran this Fall, insert the name of Hisgen. By the way, is that "g" hard or soft? Springfield please answer.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

Glad to oblige. Mr. Hisgen says the "g" in his name is given the hard sound, and there is also a little sound of "k," as if the name was spelled Hiskgen.
